Welfare Services in the Netherlands and United Kingdom Sita Radhakrishnan, 1992 In the years following World War II the concept of State Welfare did seem to be the golden mean between Marxian revolution and laissez faire evolution in the human pursuit of social justice Western democratic states that upheld the primacy of the individual and his liberty over that of the State operationalized State responsibility for welfare on the basis of social policies compatible with their socio political and economic systems This resulted in the coming into existence of a large number of services rendered by the State to its citizens touching all aspects of their lives cutting through informal intermediary institutions and developing a direct link with it The focus of this study is on these services in two such states i e the Netherlands and the United Kingdom Their provision and administration for ethnic minorities that form part of their national communities is dealt with in particular The Netherlands and the United Kingdom have constitutional monarchical systems based on the sovereignty of the people Liberalism is an underlying sociological base for their societies Both had acquired overseas colonies which resulted in the settlement of people with ethnic origins different from their dominant group within their national communities These factors make the two comparable However the ideological basis social and economic forces and movements that led to the establishment of State welfare in the two states differ significantly The study reveals that their particular ideological positions on State Society relations have a significant impact on social policies adopted by them and in the modalities of their implementation The British stand on assimilation in one dominant culture and the Dutch stand on integration with acceptance of pluralism throw up the genuine problems in the harmonization of social policy in a United Europe of the future

Immigrant Associations, Integration and Identity João Sardinha, 2009 This book sheds light on the integration processes and identity patterns of Angolan Brazilian and Eastern European communities in Portugal It examines the privileged position that immigrant organisations hold as interlocutors between the communities they represent and various social service mechanisms operating at national and local levels Through the collection of ethnographic data and the realisation of 110 interviews with community insiders and middlemen culled over a year's time João Sardinha provides insight into how the three groups are perceived by their respective associations and representatives Following up on the rich data is a discussion of strategies of coping with integration and identity in the host society and reflections on Portuguese social and community services and institutions

States And International Migrants Jeremy Hein, 2019-07-09 This book focuses on the relationship between international migrants and host societies and discusses the historical uniqueness of the Indochinese refugee migration for the U S and France It is more than the study of one refugee population and examines the relative importance of history

Shipper,2016-03-08 Although stereotypically homogenized and hostile to immigrants Japan has experienced an influx of foreigners from Asia and Latin America in recent decades In Fighting for Foreigners Apichai W Shipper details how in response Japanese citizens have established a variety of local advocacy groups some faith based some secular to help immigrants secure access to social services economic equity and political rights Drawing on his years of ethnographic fieldwork and a pragmatic account of political motivation he calls associative activism Shipper asserts that institutions that support illegal foreigners make the most dramatic contributions to democratic multiculturalism The changing demographics of Japan have been stimulating public discussions the political participation of marginalized groups and calls for fair treatment of immigrants Nongovernmental organizations established by the Japanese have been more effective than the ethnically particular associations formed by migrants themselves Shipper finds Activists who initially work in concert to solve specific and local problems eventually become more ambitious in terms of political representation and opinion formation As debates about the costs and benefits of immigration rage across the developed world Shipper s research offers a refreshing new perspective rather than undermining democracy in industrialized society immigrants can make a positive institutional contribution to vibrant forms of democratic multiculturalism Unity is Strength Markus Bierkoch,2024-12-02 Migration has been one of the most pressing societal issues throughout history Immigrant associations play a crucial role in understanding this phenomenon They channel migration streams influence the assimilation of their members and serve as representatives of the entire immigrant group in society However they remain an understudied subject particularly in historical research To address this gap this study examines German immigrant associations in New York from the 1890s to the 1930s Through an innovative combination of statistical and textual analyses it explores the class composition of these associations their intricate system of mutual aid and their political activities This study offers insights into how specific socio economic motivations influenced immigrant organization and collective action including aspects such as long distance nationalism and cross border ethnic identity Ultimately based on these findings this study demonstrates that immigrant associations played a crucial role in helping their members adapt to a new social and economic environment Additionally it shows why and how immigrant associations significantly shaped the image of German immigrants in American social and political life The Community Development Reader James DeFilippis,Susan Saegert,2013-03-05 The Community Development Reader is the first comprehensive reader in the past thirty years that brings together practice theory and critique concerning communities as sites of social change With chapters written by some of the leading scholars and practitioners in the field the book presents a diverse set of perspectives on community development These selections inform the reader about established and emerging community development institutions and practices as well as the main debates in the field The second edition is significantly updated and expanded to include a section on globalization as well as new chapters on the foreclosure crisis and emerging forms of community Migration, Transnationalism and Development in South-East Europe and the Black Sea Region Russell King,Maja Povrzanović Frykman,Julie Vullnetari,2018-04-19 The Southeast Europe and Black Sea region presents fertile terrain for examining recent international migration trends The contributions to this book cover a range of examples from Ukraine and Moldova in the north to Greece and Albania in the south By intersecting the three key concepts of migration transnationalism and development they offer new insights based on original empirical research A wide range of types of migration can be observed in this region large scale emigration in many countries recent mass immigration in the case of Greece return migration internal migration internal and external forced migration irregular migration brain drain etc These migratory phenomena occur within the context of EU migration policies and EU accession for some countries Yet within this shifting migration landscape of migrant stocks and flows the fundamental economic geography of different wealth levels and work opportunities is what drives most migration now as in the past This book was previously published as a special issue of Southeast European and Black Sea Studies

Migrants and Cities Margit Fauser, 2016-04-22 Migrants have organized at all times and in all cities and places The processes of their accommodation however differ with local authorities and other state institutions playing an important role in these processes Offering comprehensive empirical insights both from recent sites of immigration in Southern Europe as well as from places of more established immigration in the north this book examines the accommodation of migrant organizations in different cities and the factors that affect this process It thus sheds light on the manner in which the interplay of immigration regime national integration policy and local responses shape the differing patterns and trajectories observed in the formation and action of migrant organizations across Europe
