The European Union and National Industrial Policy Hussein Kassim, Anand Menon, 2002-09-11 First published in 1996 Routledge is an imprint of Taylor Francis an informa company

The European Union's Engagement with Transnational Policy Networks Stephen Kingah, Vivien Ann Schmidt, Wang Yong, 2018-02-05 This book is the first of its kind to paint a comprehensive picture of the manner in which the European Union the EU interacts with transnational policy networks TPNs The TPNs covered are those in a variety of fields including conflict prone natural resources health energy security migration human trafficking combating of terrorism financing and climate change The chapters are developed around six main lines of inquiry The lines of inquiry articulated are modalities through which the EU influences TPNs around the world TPNs influence of policy and decision making within the EU conditions under which engagement between the TPNs and the EU may be regarded as successful the identity and location of the TPNs and finally the added value or futility of a strategy developed in Brussels to weaken or fortify interactions with the networks studied The importance of TPNs should be approached from the angle of the heightened attention now placed on informal modes of decision making Increasingly there is a sense that many international decisions are adopted and internalized through networks that can be efficient yet wanting in transparency The book unveils complex debates on the inter phase between inter governmental supranational entities like the EU on the one hand and networks on the other The physiognomy of this inter phase matters not only for the EU but also for other such inter governmental supranational bodies as well as networks This book was previously published as a special issue of Contemporary Politics

The Law and Policy of Harmonisation in Europe's Internal Market Isidora Maletić, 2013-01-01 At times when so much attention is devoted to the constitutional architecture of the European Union via Treaty amendments or supplements in the aftermath of the Euro crisis the core business of European market building through harmonization is all too often neglected It deserves strong recognition that Isidora Maletić forcefully brings Art 114 TFEU back to the agenda Her competent study provides new insights into the major competence rule which still forms the back bone of European Integration The constant strive of the EU for embarking on non trade policies against the half hearted resistance of the Member States deserves indeed a major study spelling out the details of the rather complex article Her comprehensive analysis detects the amazing potential of Art 114 TFEU as a tool to co ordinate differences in the understanding of what might be a high level of protection and it allows for new ways of co operation between the EU and the Member States This finding which is backed through the analysis of the ECJ case law and the notification procedure of Art 114 TFEU fits into the overall debate on constitutional pluralism which stays away from a hierarchical understanding of the relationship between the EU legal order and the Member States Hans Micklitz European University Institute Italy This book is essential reading for anyone seeking an up to date and critical understanding of the success of the European Union s approach to market harmonisation Veerle Heyvaert London School of Economics UK Despite all the buzz around the single currency the heart of the EU edifice remains the internal market Isidora Malet's book is an outstanding contribution of original scholarship that makes this edifice look more solid than ever By exploring the theory and practice of the archetype legal basis for EU regulatory action this book dispels the ubiquitous claim that national derogations from European standards are reflective of a weak integration process and convincingly argues that national regulatory differentiation may instead provide opportunities for reflexive learning and risk prevention The law and policy of harmonisation is European internal market's scholarship at its best and ought to be essential reading to all scholars interested in the dynamics of EU integration Alberto Alemanno HEC Paris France and Editor European Journal of Risk Regulation This innovative book explores the constitutional compromise between the European Union's legislative competence and member states regulatory autonomy and analyses the reconciliation of economic integration and welfare protection within the European internal market It does so through the original lens of article 114 TFEU the law making clause underlying the European harmonisation process Focusing on a critical provision and the controversial derogation mechanism contained therein the book discusses contemporary universally fundamental topics such as risk assessment and related responsibility allocation within the constraints of complex legal frameworks the preservation of regional regulatory autonomy against the background of centralised legislative norms and the interaction of economic integration with policy interests like consumer environmental and health protection Highlighting the collaborative rather than adversarial value of national deviations from common European measures the study not only complements the literature available on negative integration of the internal market but also challenges traditionally accepted axioms revealing opportunities for risk prevention and legitimacy enhancement stemming from diverse European and national regulatory standards This detailed book will be of wide international appeal to academics practitioners students judges policy makers and officials working within the European Union and government representatives of individual member states as well as anyone more generally interested in the dynamics of EU integration

Feed-in tariffs in the European Union Béatrice Cointe, Alain Nadaï, 2018-04-13 This book is a sociological account of the historical trajectory of feed in tariffs FITs as an instrument for the promotion of renewable energy in Europe Chapters analyse the emergence and transformations of feed in tariffs as part of the policy arsenal developed to encourage the creation of markets for RES E in Europe The authors explore evolving conceptions of renewable energy policy at the intersection between environmental objectives technological change and the ambition to liberalise the internal electricity market They draw conclusions on the relationships between markets and policy making as it is instituted in the European Union and on the interplay between the implementation of a European vision on energy and national politics Distinctive in both its approach and its methods the book's aim is not to discuss the design of feed in tariffs and their evolution nor is it to assess their efficiency or fairness Instead the authors seek to understand what makes feed in tariffs what they are and how this has changed over time The Innovation Policy of the European Union Susana Borrás, 2003-07-29 Recoge Part 1

Approaches to EU Multilevel Implementation Eva Thomann,Fritz Sager,2019-10-23 Multi level governance systems like the European Union EU calibrate integration with member state discretion in order to implement common yet context sensitive solutions to shared policy problems Research on implementation in the EU typically focuses on legal compliance with EU policy However this focus gives us an incomplete picture of EU implementation its diversity and practice The contributions of this collection represent a shift toward a more performance oriented perspective on EU implementation as problem solving They approach implementation fundamentally as a process of interpretation of superordinate law by actors who are embedded within multiple contexts arising from the coexistence of dynamics of Europeanization on the one hand and what has been termed domestication on the other Moving beyond legal compliance the contributions provide new evidence on the diversity of domestic responses to EU policy the roles and motivations of actors implementing EU policy and the black box of EU law in action and its enforcement By reassessing the relative importance of EU policy and domestic factors and actors for the outcomes of EU implementation the results give insight into on the nuanced interplay between Europeanization and domestication forces useful for both EU researchers and practitioners The chapters originally published as a special issue in the Journal of European Public Policy Energy Policy Making in the EU Jale Tosun,Sophie Biesenbender,Kai Schulze,2015-01-05 The book adopts an innovative analytical approach to agenda setting by not only presenting successful cases in which energy issues were addressed by means of public policy but by also analyzing failed attempts to make issues part of the European policy agenda Another outstanding feature of the book is its use of the latest empirical data on a broad range of energy issues When are energy issues likely to find their way to the agenda of European policymakers This is the key research question guiding this collection of empirical studies which will shed light on both successful and unsuccessful attempts to include energy issues in the European agenda The multi level political system of the European Union represents a particularly fruitful setting for addressing this question due to the multiple institutional access points it provides for different groups of actors The book has three key benefits First it provides a theory informed analysis of agenda setting processes in general and in the European Union in particular Second it presents an overview of the most important and emerging dimensions on European energy policy and third it helps to develop a research agenda for future research in the field A Liberal Actor in a Realist World Andreas Goldthau,Nick Sitter,2015-08-13 Since 1992 the European Union has put liberalisation at the core of its energy policy agenda This aspiration was very much in line with an international political economy driven by the neo liberal Washington consensus The central challenge for the EU is that the energy world has changed while the EU has not The rise of Asian energy consumers China and India more assertive energy producers Russia and the threat of climate change have securitized the IPE of energy and turned it more realist The main research question is therefore What does a liberal actor do in a realist world The overall answer as far as the EU is concerned is that it approaches energy challenges as a problem of market failure imperfect competition on the supply side inadequate supply of public goods on the demand side and in terms of infrastructure and large externalities that arise both from non energy events and from large scale consumption of fossil fuels A Liberal Actor in a Realist World assesses the changing nature of the global political economy of energy and the European Union's response and the external dimension of the regulatory state The book concludes that the EU's soft power has a hard edge which is derived primarily from its regulatory power This works best when it targets companies rather than governments and it is more effective in the Near Abroad than at the global level This makes the EU emerge an actor in its own right in the global political economy of energy a Regulatory Power Europe

Technocracy in the European Union Claudio M. Radaelli, 2017-09-29 One of the most common and strongest criticisms of the EU is that power is held by a select few who are unaccountable technocrats sitting in Brussels who without consultation formulate policies A fresh and innovative new series written by leading authorities providing students and researchers with a concise analysis of key topics relating to the state of the European Union and its future development Combining insights from the theoretical literature with brief institutional descriptions each book in the series focuses on the key questions Where does power lie What are the likely scenarios for development thereby enabling the reader to gain a better sense of the dynamic processes of politics at EU level Trade, Foreign Policy, and Defence in EU Constitutional Law Panos Koutrakos, 2001 This book examines how the increasing interdependence between trade and foreign policy can be managed within the legal framework of the European Union In the context of the legally distinct characteristics of the European Community and the Common Foreign and Security Policy it analyses the problems underpinning the regulation of three areas sanctions against third countries armaments and exports of dual use goods The focus is on whether the constitutional order of the European Union may address these problems while performing a variety of functions ensuring the consistency and coherence of its external relations preserving the acquis communautaire and respecting the right of the Member States to conduct their foreign policy as fully sovereign subjects of international law The book concludes that the interactions between trade and foreign policy may be regulated in a legally sensible and realistic way within the current structure of the European Union The recent developments regarding the defense and security identity of the European Union and the debate over the nature of an enlarged Union make this book all the more topical Technology Policy in the European Union John Peterson, Margaret Sharp, 1998 The EU's expanding technology policy role can be justified by both competitive challenges and advantages which are more or less shared by all its member states However the politics of European technology policy remain lively and contentious They reflect wider debates about the proper role of the EU in European political and economic life This important book provides an authoritative yet accessible assessment of the development size and impact of European technology policies and a critique of their current direction European Union Contested Elisabeth Johansson-Nogués, Martijn C. Vlaskamp, Esther Barbé, 2019-11-13 The European Union's foreign policy and its international role are increasingly being contested both globally and at home At the global level a growing number of states are now challenging the Western led liberal order defended by the EU Large as well as smaller states are vying for more leeway to act out their own communitarian principles on and approaches to sovereignty security and economic development At the European level a similar battle has begun over principles values and institutions The most vocal critics have been anti globalization movements developmental NGOs and populist political parties at both extremes of the left right political spectrum This book based on ten case studies explores some of the most important current challenges to EU foreign policy norms whether at the global glocal or intra EU level The case studies cover contestation of the EU s fundamental norms organizing principles and standardized procedures in relation to the abolition of the death penalty climate Responsibility to Protect peacebuilding natural resource governance the International Criminal Court lethal autonomous weapons systems trade the security development nexus and the use of consensus on foreign policy matters in the European Parliament The book also theorizes the current norm contestation in terms of the extent to and conditions under which the EU foreign policy is being put to the test
