

Edward D. Berkowitz, Disabled Policy: America's Programs for the Handicapped - A Twentieth Century Fund Report, Cambridge University Press, Cambridge, 1987, 280 pp., £27.50, ISBN 0 521 34014 4.

Through the use of archival material and interviews with those directly involved in the development of disability policy in the United States, Edward Berkowitz documents and illustrates the way in which the accretion of heterogeneous legislation and programmes throughout the century have not had the net result of effecting any overall policy for people with disabilities in the USA. In the first half of the book the author focuses on income-maintenance programmes and the origins, administration and shortcomings of Social Security Disability insurance. These approaches are regarded as ameliorative rather than corrective and seek to ease the financial burden which physical and mental impairments impose on people. Corrective approaches would seek to improve the productivity of people with handicaps or to change the economic environment in which they function.

The corrective responses with which the second half of the book is concerned include vocational rehabilitation, independent living programmes, civil rights and architectural barrier laws. Despite the more recent evolution of the corrective response, Berkowitz demonstrates that these approaches are still secondary, a situation which he does not expect to see change in the near future. The historical evolution of the corrective response from the 1970s is described by elucidating the impact of the view that people with handicaps are a minority comparable to blacks or single women parents. This minority model provided the intellectual basis for the movement towards independent living, and its development is described through a series of vivid case histories of the protagonists. With funding of the independent living movement through the Title VII (1978) grants, the scene was set for a series of conflicts between the movement and traditional vocational rehabilitation approaches.

Berkowitz sets the policy initiatives for people with disabilities in the wider framework of legislation concerned with handicap. The significance and origins of Section 504 legislation are fully documented, with Berkowitz commenting on the 'almost religious aura' it attained for the community of people with disabilities, stating as it does: 'No otherwise qualified handicapped individual in the United States shall, solely by reason of his handicap, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any program or activity conducted by an Executive agency or by the United State Postal Service'. The implementation of Section 504 was particularly exercised by who was covered by its provisions, for example, the exclusion of elderly people. In due course there was a substantial backlash against people with handicaps. Nevertheless, as Berkowitz notes: 'Section 504 remains the component of disability policy with the widest scope. It covers all of the handicapped, not just those industrially injured, the mentally retarded, the blind, those whose handicap keeps them from being employed, those who are covered by social security and cannot engage in substantial gainful activity, or those wounded in war.'

Berkowitz's 'Summary and conclusions' begin with a disclaimer as to how
