Mortal Thoughts Brian Cummings, 2013-08-22 Since the nineteenth century it has been assumed that the concept of personal identity in the early modern period is bound up with secularization Indeed many explanations of the emergence of modernity have been based on this thesis in which Shakespeare as a secular author has played a central role However the idea of secularization is now everywhere under threat The secularity of modern society is less apparent than it was a generation ago Shakespeare too has come to be seen in a religious perspective What happens to human identity in this different framework Mortal Thoughts asks what selfhood looks like if we do not assume that an idea of the self could only come into being as a result of an emptying out of a religious framework It does so by examining human mortality What it is to be human and how a life is framed by its ending are issues that cross religious confessions in early modernity and interrogate the sacred and secular divide A series of chapters examines literature and art in relation to concepts such as conscience martyrdom soliloquy luck suicide and embodiment Religious and philosophical creativity are revealed as poised around anxieties about finitude and contingency challenging conventional divisions between kinds of literary and artistic endeavour Mortal Thoughts considers incipient genres of life writing More Foxe and Montaigne and life drawing Diderot Hans Baldung Grien in relation to dramatic representation and literary narration Shakespeare Donne Milton In the process it asks whether the problem of human identity rewrites historical boundaries
