Kachur explores the major plays by George Etherege and William Wycherley within the context of the cultural, social and political changes that marked the reign of Charles II and addresses issues such as marriage, manners, heroism, sovereignty and anxieties over class hierarchies which preoccupied late seventeenth century England. The book provides studies of the following plays: She Would If She Could, The Man of Mode, The Country Wife, The Plain Dealer. In addition to examining the plays as cultural and historical texts, Kachur offers biographical sketches detailing the dramaturgical styles of the two playwrights. Three Restoration Comedies George Etherege, William Congreve, William Wycherley, 2005-11-24 After the restoration of King Charles II to the British throne in 1660, dramatists experienced new freedom in an age that broke from the strict morality of puritan rule and in which elegance and wit became the chief virtues. Irreverent, licentious and cynical, the three plays collected here hold up a mirror to this dazzling era and satirize the gulf between appearances and reality. In Etherege's The Man of Mode (1676), the womanizing Dorimant meets his match when he falls in love with the unpretentious Harriet. While Wycherley's The Country Wife (c. 1675) depicts the rakish Horner who fakes impotence to fool trusting husbands into giving him easy access to their wives. And in Congreve's Love for Love (1695), the extravagant Valentine can only win his beloved Angelica if he loses his inheritance.

The Feminist Voices in Restoration Comedy Douglas M. Young, 1997-05-22 Sir George Etherege, William Wycherley and William Congreve introduce into their play worlds major female characters who demand independence and equality from their male counterparts. This book focuses on each major female character who demands independence and equality of her gallant libertine before she will commit to marriage or courtship with him This demand for equality is a contrast to the social and marital relationships found in the real world of 17th century English Restoration society where marriage was a bargaining process for property and where the woman was treated as the man's property Each of the three playwrights develops his virtuous women in a different way Wycherley's approach to his characters for instance is quite different from that of Etherege and Congreve But in each case the playwrights present major female characters who prove themselves superior in wit and wisdom and thoroughly modern in their outlook

Two-edg'd Weapons Robert Markley, 1988 This book provides an important rereading of dramatic language in the comedies of Etherege Wycherley and Congreve Demonstrating that comic wit of the late 1600s was a potent means by which to question orthodox political social and sexual values this is the first work to draw significantly on postmodern theories to discuss the historical problems posed by late 17th century dramatic style Markley provides a dialogic account of style based on the work of Russian theorist Mikhail Bakhtin and gives revisionist reading of seventeenth century stylistic theory
