Ethics And Economics Of Assisted Reproduction The Cost Of Longing:

Ethics and Economics of Assisted Reproduction Maura A. Ryan, 2003-06-11 For those who undergo it infertility treatment is costly time consuming invasive and emotionally and physically arduous yet technology remains the focus of most public discussion of the topic Drawing on concepts from medical ethics feminist theory and Roman Catholic social teaching Maura A Ryan analyzes the economic ethical theological and political dimensions of assisted reproduction Taking seriously the experience of infertility as a crisis of the self the spirit and the body Ryan argues for the place of reproductive technologies within a temperate affordable sustainable and just health care system She contends that only by ceasing to treat assisted reproduction as a consumer product can meaningful questions about medical appropriateness and social responsibility be raised She places infertility treatments within broader commitments to the common good thereby understanding reproductive rights as an inherently social rather than individual issue Arguing for some limits on access to reproductive technology Ryan considers ways to assess the importance of assisted reproduction against other social and medical prerogatives and where to draw the line in promoting fertility Finally Ryan articulates the need for a compassionate spirituality within faith communities that will nurture those who are infertile Environmental Ethics and Medical

Reproduction Cristina Richie, 2024 In Environmental Ethics and Medical Reproduction Dr Cristina Richie uses the term medicalized reproduction MR to describe the impact of technology on human reproduction including from pre conception gamete retrieval in vitro fertilization IVF and birthing suites Unlike other areas of high carbon health care such as organ transplantation or chemotherapy medicalized reproduction does not treat cure or prevent disease It is supported by an economized medical industry and as such is open for ethical scrutiny This book considers how technology has fundamentally changed the discussion on biomedical ethics environmental ethics and reproductive ethics The Sexual Person Todd A. Salzman, Michael G. Lawler, 2008-05-21 Two principles capture the essence of the official Catholic position on the morality of sexuality first that any human genital act must occur within the framework of heterosexual marriage second each and every marriage act must remain open to the transmission of life In this comprehensive overview of Catholicism and sexuality theologians Todd A Salzman and Michael G Lawler examine and challenge these principles Remaining firmly within the Catholic tradition they contend that the church is being inconsistent in its teaching by adopting a dynamic historically conscious anthropology and worldview on social ethics and the interpretation of scripture while adopting a static classicist anthropology and worldview on sexual ethics While some documents from Vatican II like Gaudium et spes the marital act promotes self giving by which spouses enrich each other gave hope for a renewed understanding of sexuality the church has not carried out the full implications of this approach In short say Salzman and Lawler emphasize relationships not acts and recognize Christianity's historically and culturally conditioned understanding of human sexuality The Sexual Person draws historically methodologically and anthropologically from the best of Catholic tradition and provides a context for current theological debates between traditionalists and revisionists regarding marriage cohabitation homosexuality reproductive technologies and what it means to be human This daring and potentially revolutionary book will be sure to provoke constructive dialogue among theologians and between theologians and the Magisterium Theological Bioethics Lisa Sowle Cahill, 2005-11-16 The field of bioethics was deeply influenced by religious thinkers as it emerged in the 1960s and early 1970s Since that time however a seemingly neutral political liberalism has pervaded the public sphere resulting in a deep suspicion of those bringing religious values to bear on questions of bioethics and public policy As a theological ethicist and progressive Catholic Lisa Sowle Cahill does not want to cede the religious perspective to fundamentalists and the pro life movement nor does she want to submit to the gospel of a political liberalism that champions individual autonomy as holy writ In Theological Bioethics Cahill calls for progressive religious thinkers and believers to join in the effort to reclaim the best of their traditions through jointly engaging political forces at both community and national levels In Cahill's eyes just access to health care must be the number one priority for this type of participatory bioethics She describes a new understanding of theological bioethics that must go beyond decrying injustice beyond opposing social practices that commercialize human beings beyond painting a vision of a more egalitarian future Such a participatory bioethics she argues must also take account of and take part in a global social network of mobilization for change it must seek out those in solidarity those involved in a common calling to create a more just social political and economic system During the past two decades Cahill has made profound contributions to theological ethics and bioethics This is a magisterial and programmatic statement that will alter how the religiously inclined understand their role in the great bioethics debates of today and tomorrow that yearn for clear thinking and prophetic wisdom International Encyclopedia of Public Health William C Cockerham, 2016-10-06
