Ethics In Endoflife Decisions In Social Work Practice:

Ethics in End-Of-Life Decisions in Social Work Practice Associate Professor of Social Work Ellen L. Csikai, Ellen L. Csikai, Director of the Medical Ethics and Palliative Care Services Department Elizabeth Chaitin, Elizabeth Chaitin, 2006-06 Modern medical technologies have given patients and their families new options at the end of life. These options are often accompanied by difficult medical and ethical questions. Ellen L. Csikai and Elizabeth Chaitin give social workers an expanded ethical base on which to ground their understandings and explanations of the end of life options available to patients and workers in healthcare environments. The authors connect long standing philosophical theories to contemporary concerns in the field of bioethics. In addition to theoretical issues, the authors include case studies to show the complex end of life decisions faced by patients, families, and health care workers. In order to help make these decisions, Csikai and Chaitin discuss how to assess knowledge, create treatment and intervention plans, and cultivate empowerment, teamwork, and cultural sensitivity. The authors experienced social workers offer approaches for resolving debates about informed consent, privacy, and confidentiality, and the refusal or denial of medical treatment. The authors offer both ethical and practical methods for dealing with the potentially charged decisions and negotiations between patients, families, and healthcare workers. Unlike other books that focus entirely on the moral consequences and concerns at the end of life, Ethics in End of Life Decisions in Social Work Practice combines moral understanding and analysis with a practical and active approach. Encyclopedia of Social Work, 1965

The Oxford Textbook of Palliative Social Work Terry Altilio, Shirley Otis-Green, John G. Cagle, 2022 It is so important to advocate for things that may not always seem possible. Getting to work with patients' families at the end of their life is the ultimate honor. Lauren G. Markham, MSW, LCSW, APHSW-C. In this work, one witnesses both depths of human suffering and heights of human transcendence that can inspire both awe and fear. At those times, I have found that surrendering my need to be an expert and instead allow myself to simply be a human is the wisest action. Kerry Irish, LCSW, OSW-C, FAOSW

Social Work Practice in Healthcare Karen M. Allen, William J. Spitzer, 2015-04-10 Social Work Practice in Health Care by Karen M Allen and William J Spitzer is a pragmatic and comprehensive book that helps readers develop the knowledge skills and values necessary for effective health care social work practice as well as an understanding of the technological social political ethical and financial factors affecting contemporary patient care Packed with case studies and exercises the book emphasizes the importance of being attentive to both patient and organizational needs covers emerging trends in health care policy and delivery provides extensive discussion of the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act and addresses social work practice across the continuum of care Older Citizens and End-of-Life Care Malcolm Payne, 2017-02-22 Older people are like younger people citizens in the communities of the nations in which they live This book sees ageing as a life journey that incorporates a process of citizenizing in which people build their identity as part of their family and community. But the social experience of illness, frailty, disability, and reaching the end of life may de-citizen older people by devaluing the social identity that comes from continuing social engagement. We de-citizen older people by emphasizing dependence on services and their cost to public expenditure instead of valuing the interdependence of participation and mutual respect. This book argues that older people retain full citizenship for the whole of their lives up to the moment of death, but what does this mean for health and social care? In this groundbreaking book, Malcolm Payne argues that social work with older people must build re-citizenizing practice strategies to value both the common and the special aspects of the citizenship of older people. Current models of social care and social work create dependency rather than relying on values of participative interdependence. The failure to recognize the end of life as a crucial element in all social care and social work for older people means that the lessons learned in providing palliative and end of life care in healthcare have not been transferred to social care and the priorities of end of life care have not been adequately encompassed in social work with older people.
