Loewy, 2007-05-08 Today we have more control over how we live and how we die than we ever had before This fact has produced many ethical problems While much about life is biologically determined much else is determined by the social circumstances surrounding it Unfortunately little energy is spent dealing with the social and psychological factors within which the medical biological factors are imbedded In this volume the authors examine some of the medical social and psychological conditions which affect the way we die Important topics covered include attitudes toward death suicide assisted suicide and euthanasia hospice and pain management This volume will be of interest to all who work with terminally ill patients End-of-Life Care and Pragmatic Decision Making D. Heffner, Ira Byock, 2002 This addition to the popular Pearls Series presents 71 case presentations of clinical interest related to end of life and palliative care for both hospitalized patients and patients receiving home care The patient vignettes highlight considerations of pain and symptom management at the end of life ethical issues related to life supportive care and approaches to assisting patients and families with the difficulties that surround death and dying Textbook of Healthcare Ethics Erich E.H. Loewy, Roberta Springer Loewy, 2006-01-16 1 Historical Introduction INTRODUCTION This chapter is mainly about the history of medicine and its ethics As usually conceived history is retrograde It is what happened yesterday and much as we may try it is what happened yesterday seen with a set of today's eyes Trying to understand yesterday's culture may help us put on a pair of corrective glasses but it fails in tirelessly correcting our vision Contemporary cultural anthropology may likewise help us understand the way today's events and cultural habits shape what we call history tomorrow Past events and the kaleidoscopic pattern of today's cultures may help guide us into a future that in at least some respects is ours to forge Learning about ethics yesterday and thinking about ethics as it expresses itself in various cultures today can help us shape the ethics of tomorrow This is true whether we are speaking of that part of social ethics called medical or of any other part of social ethics The social aspects of medical practice how the institution called medicine fits into and works within the greater society called culture shape the way its ethics ultimately must play itself out The Poetics of Palliation Brittany Pladek,2019-05-24 The Poetics of Palliation argues that Romanticism developed richer literary therapies than its contemporary reception remembers By reading Romantic writers against Georgian medical ethics Poetics recovers their models of literature as comfort and sustenance challenging a health humanities tradition that sees literary therapy primarily as cure and more is known about methadone and other medications with emerging uses The third edition of this highly popular book continues to offer a panoramic view of palliative care It introduces a number of new topics including Neurological Disorders The Last Days and Palliative Sedation Terminal Illness Andrea C. Nakaya, 2005 Presents various opinions on the best way to care for the terminally ill and their friends and family including a debate on the role of euthanasia Interventional Cardiology in the Elderly Harald Rittger, 2015-10-13 This book provides an in depth review of the current practice in treating elderly patients with coronary artery disease CAD as well as an update of the existing literature It is intended to reflect the current science of elderly patients with stable angina acute coronary syndromes and those patients who are forwarded for CAGB procedures Evidence in the elderly patient group is often limited and or non existent therefore the main challenge even for further research will be to define the role of geriatric preconditions and its impact on outcome A second topic will be to clarify how if ever existing cardiological outcome values like mortality can be applied to elderly patients or if other values like improvement of functional status or quality of life are more suitable parameters to measure interventional success in elderly patients The role of pharmacotherapy in advanced age has to be discussed These topics will be embedded in epidemiological pathophysiological and ethical aspects of interventional treatment of CAD in older age Death and Dying James Haley, 2003 Authors offer various opinions on how end of life care should be improved how people can best cope with death and grief and whether or not the human life span should be extended Terminal Sedation: Euthanasia in Disguise? Torbjörn Tännsjö, 2004-06-01 TERMINAL SEDATION DURING THE 1990s During the 1990s a discussion took place in scholarly journals concerning a measure within palliative care that had earlier attracted little attention to wit the sedation of dying patients There seem to have been two main reasons why the practice came under debate On the one hand some people felt that when palliative medicine had advanced and methods to control symptoms had improved it was no longer justified to sedate the patients in a manner that had often been done in the past The system of 1 terminal sedation had turned into euthanasia in disguise or slow euthanasia On the other hand there were people sympathetic to the recently established Dutch system of euthanasia people who agreed that terminal sedation was euthanasia in disguise but who felt that if it is not objectionable to sedate dying patients at their request then why should it not be permitted for doctors to kill dying patients at 2 request From these two motives a discussion about terminal sedation gained momentum The intention behind this anthology is to continue and deepen this discussion The anthology starts off with a chapter where an influential article from the 1990s has been reprinted The British National Bibliography Arthur James Wells, 2002 Palliative Sedierung im stationären Hospiz Annette Riedel, 2020-02-17 Die Autorin greift ein aktuelles ethisch reflexionswürdiges Thema in der Praxis stationärer Hospizversorgung auf die dauerhafte tiefe Palliative Sedierung am Lebensende Im Rahmen des partizipativen Forschungsprozesses wurden wiederkehrende ethische Fragestellungen und Unsicherheiten erfasst die in den stationären Hospizen im Kontext der Behandlungsoption existieren Dieser Band expliziert indes nicht nur die ethischen

Konfliktpotenziale sondern bietet der hospizlichen Praxis zugleich ein konkretes handlungsleitendes Verfahren an hin zu einer ethisch begründeten Entscheidungsfindung eine Ethik Leitlinie Das Buch verbindet pflegewissenschaftliche Forschung mit praxisbezogener Replik es verbindet die Sensibilisierung für ethische Reflexion mit ethisch begründeter Entscheidungsfindung The author concentrates on a recent ethical subject worth of reflection in the practice of stationary hospice care the continuous Palliative sedation at the end of life During the participative research process recurrent ethical questions and unclarities were collected existing in stationary hospices concerning the treatment options This volume not only presents ethical conflict potentials but also offers a clear practice oriented method in hospice care that leads to an ethical motivated decision making an ethics guide This book combines not only nursing science and research with practice oriented replica but also the awareness for ethical reflections with ethical motivated decision making Physician-Assisted Dying Timothy E. Quill, Margaret P. Battin, 2004-10-13 In this volume a distinguished group of physicians ethicists lawyers and activists come together to present the case for the legalization of physician assisted dying for terminally ill patients who voluntarily request it To counter the arguments and assumptions of those opposed to legalization of assisted suicide the contributors examine ethical arguments concerning self determination and the relief of suffering analyze empirical data from Oregon and the Netherlands describe their personal experiences as physicians family members and patients assess the legal and ethical responsibilities of the physician and discuss the role of pain depression faith and dignity in this decision Together the essays in this volume present strong arguments for the ethical acceptance and legal recognition of the practice of physician assisted dying as a last resort not as an alternative to excellent palliative care but as an important possibility for patients who seek it
