China's Mongols at University Zhenzhou Zhao, Wing On Lee, 2010-04-09 Minority students in China often receive preferential treatment for access to universities However very little is known about minority student experiences and perceptions on campus after they are accorded what s called meaningful access to university The Mongols emerged as a distinct ethnic group in China starting in the 11th century and in the centuries that followed conquered a large part of the world However in modern times this nomadic people s influence has declined and even their survival in China has been threatened This decline is evidenced by the fact that increasing numbers of Mongols have abandoned their native language and traditional customs especially those who live in cities How do Mongol university students who form the backbone of the Mongol intellectual community identify themselves in a modern Chinese context How do they react as university students to the way in which their culture is recognized and represented Do Mongol students suffer from injustice in the cultural dimension of campus life China s Mongols at University Contesting Cultural Recognition seeks to answer these questions Zhenzhou Zhao addresses these issues by comparing the university discourse on minority culture policy institutional structure and daily life and the Mongol student discourse concerning their experiences perceptions of recognition and dedication to self representation on campus Additionally Gao compares three universities in China Located in Inner Mongolia Autonomous Region Beijing and Hubei Province respectively each of these universities represents one of three types of higher education accessible to minority students in China universities located in ethnic areas standard universities and universities for nationalities China s Mongols at University explores and discusses an intrinsic connection between marketization and globalization and the disadvantages faced by minority groups This book argues that China must move from a policy of preferential tre

This book is an ideal introduction for anyone considering research approach or becoming an educational ethnographer and will be of interest to researchers already working in this field Ethnography Paul Atkinson, 2007-06-26 Now in its third edition this leading introduction to ethnography has been thoroughly updated and substantially rewritten It offers a systematic introduction to ethnographic principles and practice New material covers the use of visual and virtual research methods hypermedia software and the issue of ethical regulation There is also a new prologue and epilogue The authors argue that ethnography is best understood as a reflexive process What this means is that we must recognize that social research is part of the world that it studies From an outline of the principle of reflexivity the authors go on to discuss and exemplify main features of ethnographic work including the selection and sampling of cases the problems of access observation and interviewing recording and filing data the process of data analysis and writing research reports Throughout the discussion draws on a wide range of illustrative material from classic and more recent studies within a global context The new edition of this popular textbook will be an indispensable resource for students and researchers utilizing social research methods in the social sciences and cultural studies

The Myth of Research-Based Policy and Practice Martyn Hammersley, 2013-03-13 Martyn Hammersley's provocative new text interrogates the complex relationship between research policymaking and practice against the background of the evidence based practice movement Addressing a series of probing questions this book reflects on the challenge posed by the idea that social research can directly serve policymaking and practice Key questions explored include Is scientific research evidence based What counts as evidence for evidence based practice Is social measurement possible and is it necessary What are the criteria by which qualitative research should be judged The book also discusses the case for action research the nature of systematic reviews proposals for interpretive reviews and the process of qualitative synthesis Highly readable and undeniably relevant this book is a valuable resource for both academics and professionals involved with research

The Sociology of Rural Life Samantha Hillyard, 2007-07-15 Foot and mouth disease and BSE have both had a devastating impact on rural society Alongside these devastating developments the rise of the organic food movement has helped to revitalize an already politicized rural population From fox hunting to farming the vigour with which rural activities and living are defended overturns received notions of a sleepy and complacent countryside Over the years rural life has been defined redefined and eventually fallen out of fashion as a sociological concept in contrast to urban studies which has flourished This much needed reappraisal calls for its reinterpretation in light of the profound changes affecting the countryside First providing an overview of rural sociology Hillyard goes on to offer contemporary case studies that clearly demonstrate the need for a reinvigorated rural sociology Tackling a range of contentious issues from fox hunting to organic farming this book offers a new model for rural sociology and reassesses its role in contemporary society

Questioning Qualitative Inquiry Martyn Hammersley, 2008-07-10 Is qualitative research in crisis In Questioning Qualitative Inquiry Martyn Hammersley raises fundamental questions about the current state of qualitative social research He examines some of the changes that have taken place within it over the past fifty years suggesting that the move away from natural science as a model and towards an appeal to literature and art involves rejection of key principles that are essential to research of any kind Hammersley argues that in important respects qualitative inquiry has not lived up to the claims originally made on its behalf and that more recent developments have worsened the situation Insufficient attention has been given to the problems surrounding leading ideas like thick description analytic induction and constructionism The argument is pursued through discussion of the work of influential writers such as Clifford Geertz Denzin and Lincoln and by detailed examination of concrete issues like the value of interview data the rationales for discourse and conversation analysis the role of rhetoric in research reports and the nature of assessment criteria At a time when qualitative inquiry is coming under renewed challenge in some quarters the task of addressing the methodological problems it faces has become urgent These essays on current developments and debates are essential reading for anyone interested in the future of qualitative research

Political Melodies in the Pews? David L. Moody, 2012-09-27 In this fascinating study of contemporary Christian worshippers David L Moody analyzes Christian rap music against traditional Christian theology For many mixing the sanctified worship of God with music originating from unconsecrated avenues has become difficult to accept From the back alleys and streets of the hood to the club scene of urban America Christian rappers walk to a different beat than the preacher at the pulpit However similar to a street evangelist the Black Christian rapper is about singing praise to God and delivering the gospel message to his lost homies on the streets Moody examines the emergence of hip hop based ministries and their place among youth with the Black community

Writer Identity and the Teaching and Learning of Writing Teresa Cremin, Terry Locke, 2016-12-01

Writer Identity and the Teaching and Learning of Writing is a groundbreaking book which addresses what it really means to identify as a writer in educational contexts and the implications for writing pedagogy. It conceptualises writers' identities and draws upon empirical studies to explore their construction, enactment and performance. Focusing largely on teachers' identities and practices as writers and the writer identities of primary and secondary students, it also encompasses the perspectives of professional writers and highlights promising new directions for research. With four interlinked sections, this book offers nuanced understandings of how writer identities are shaped and formed. Insights into how classroom practice changes when teachers position themselves as writers alongside their students. New understandings of what this positioning means for students' identities as writers and writing pedagogy and illuminating case studies mapping young people's writing trajectories. With an international team of contributors, the book offers a global perspective on this vital topic and makes a new and strongly theorised contribution to the field. Viewing writer identity as fluid and multifaceted, this book is important reading for practising teachers, student teachers, educational researchers and practitioners currently undertaking postgraduate studies. Contributors include Teresa Cremin, Terry Locke, Sally Baker, Josephine Brady, Diane Collier, Nikolaj Elf, Ian Eyres, Theresa Lillis, Marilyn McKinney, Denise Morgan, Debra Myhill, Mary Ryan, Kristin Stang, Chris Street, Anne Whitney and Rebecca Woodard.

Linking Families, Learning, and Schooling Bobbie Kabuto, Prisca Martens, 2014-01-21. Parents who are also educational researchers have access to a domain that is highly complex and not always available to other scholars. In this book, parent researchers provide theoretical and practical insights into children's learning in the home and at school. Readers are given a window into learning in the home context and how all family members organize or engage in that learning. Working on two levels, the book develops scholarly discussions about learning in the home: how is it organized, who the participants are, and what children are learning, and it illustrates the impacts that outside institutions, in particular schools, have on families. It is unique in showcasing parent research as a type of research paradigm with particular aspects and challenges. Both teachers and researchers can learn from these studies as they show the impact that schooling has on families and how institutional discourses and beliefs can both positively and negatively affect the dynamics of any family.

Critical Ethnography in Educational Research Francis Phil Carspecken, 2013-09-13

Ethnographic methods are becoming increasingly prevalent in contemporary educational research. Critical Ethnography in Educational Research provides both a technical/theoretical guide to advanced ethnography focusing on such concepts as primary data collection and system relationships and a very practical guide for researchers interested in conducting actual studies.

An Ethnographic Study of Northern Ghanaian Conflicts A.K. Awedoba, 2010-10-20

Conflict in Northern Ghana appears to be increasing in amplitude and frequency and its effects are getting more devastating. It is the view of this book that the Government of Ghana and civil society organisations involved in aspects of conflict management have approached peace issues in the region with an inadequate understanding of the local issues that divide and unite the people or using sufficient resources to preempt conflict. In 2003, The Mole V summit was held in Damongo to discuss strategic directions for comprehensive development and poverty reduction in Northern Ghana as a mechanism for supporting conflict management. It is the aim of this publication to contribute to the proposed plan by suggesting past and current conflict management resources and mechanisms which could be employed. The suggestions are informed by surveys which are outlined in the book of particular conflicts in the three northern Regions of Ghana between 2006 and 2008, their histories, causes and effects and their resolution.
