Etiological Role Of Hepatitis C Virus In Lymphomagenesis:

The Etiological Role of Hepatitis C Virus in Lymphomagenesis Gasztonyi Beata, Alajos Par, Kiss Katalin, Kereskai Laszlo, Gyula Mozsik, 2003-06-01 The acute inflammation of liver in patients acute hepatitis can be produced by different chemicals such as alcohol or drugs and different viruses The hepatitis C virus HCV was discovered in 1989 which is dominantly transmitted via blood transfusion or intravenous medicine The etiological role of HCV which produces acute hepatitis and chronic hepatitis liver cirrhosis hepatocellular carcinoma liver diseases has gradually increased throughout the world The lymphocyte mediated immunological mechanisms have a key role in the development of different forms of virus induced liver diseases This monograph details the results of studies of the mechanisms of HCV induced development of non Hodgkin lymphoma in patients It will be of interest to molecular biologists virologists geneticists internists pathologists and experimental and clinical hepatologists Emerging and Reemerging Viral Pathogens Moulay Mustapha Ennaji, 2019-09-27 Emerging and Reemerging Viral Pathogens Fundamental and Basic Virology Aspects of Human Animal and Plant Pathogens Volume One presents new research information on viruses and their impact on the scientific community It provides a reference book on certain viruses in humans animals and vegetal along with a comprehensive discussion on interspecies interactions The book then looks at the drug vaccine and bioinformatical strategies that can be used against these viruses giving the reader a clear understanding of transmission The book s end goal is to create awareness that the appearance of newly transmissible pathogens is a global risk that requires shared adoptable policies for prevention and control Covers most emerging viral disease in humans animals and plants Provides the most advanced tools and techniques in molecular virology and the modeling of viruses Creates awareness that the appearance of new transmissible pathogens is a global risk Highlights the need to adopt shared policies for the prevention and control of infectious diseases HCV Infection and Cryoglobulinemia Franco Dammacco, 2011-11-19 The first observation of cold induced precipitation of serum proteins dates back to 1933 when Wintrobe and Buell first described an unusual case of multiple myeloma in a woman whose serum reversibly precipitated at cold temperatures In 1947 Lerner and Watson showed cold precipitable proteins to be gammaglobulins and called them cryoglobulins and the corresponding clinical condition cryoglobulinemia Meltzer and Franklin in 1966 provided an accurate description of the typical clinical symptoms associated with cryoglobulinemia showed that they consisted of two different globulin components and because of the ignorance on its etiology called this clinical condition essential mixed cryoglobulinemia For almost 20 years progress has been rather slow in this field but when at the end of the 80s it finally became possible to detect the occurrence in the serum of antibodies to the hepatitis C virus HCV many groups in Europe and the United States almost simultaneously reported that a high proportion of essential cryoglobulinemias are in fact associated with HCV infection This hallmark has resulted in a new impetus and great enthusiasm in carrying out new researches made possible by the awareness that cryoglobulinemia is to be considered an undisputable extrahepatic manifestation of HCV infection In addition the evidence that HCV has tropism for hepatocytes and lymphocytes has stimulated new approaches to the autoimmune phenomena and the potential transformation in non Hodgkin s lymphomas which not infrequently can be discovered in these patients The same applies to the obvious therapeutic implications once the association between HCV infection and mixed cryoglobulinemia has been firmly established It was thus felt that times were ripe to produce a state of the art survey of the multi faceted picture of cryoglobulinemia This book is indeed unique in the detail of its presentation its completeness and its fundamental approach to the subject The most qualified authors have been invited to contribute critical articles reviewing significant developments related to each of the eight sections in which the whole treatment has been divided from basic mechanisms governing interactions between HCV and the immune system to the immunochemical characterization of cryoglobulins and the frequently concomitant serological abnormalities from genetic features and the role of certain cytokines and chemokines to the cellular compartments of HCV infection and replication from the clinical manifestations of cryoglobulinemic patients and their potential susceptibility to develop non Hodgkin s lymphoma to conventional treatment of the syndrome and the newer promising therapeutic advances The reader will appreciate the immediacy of style the striking illustrations and the color plates In addition the comprehensive review of a systemic disease such as cryoglobulinemia will interest basic scientists and specialists involved in several disciplines including internal medicine hepatology hematology oncology infectious diseases rheumatology nephrology and dermatology General practitioners graduate and post graduate students will also find in this book an irreplaceable source of update in this fascinating field
