Women, Power, and Political Representation Roosmarijn de Geus, Erin Tolley, Elizabeth Goodyear-Grant, Peter John Loewen, 2021-07-30 Delving into the pressing topic of gender and politics this volume provides fresh comparative perspectives on what works to promote women in politics today

Inspiring and informative Women Power and Political Representation offers a comprehensive overview of the role women play in contemporary politics and pinpoints the reasons behind their underrepresentation. Discussing the challenges and opportunities women face when running for office as well as their experiences as political leaders, this book offers a broad and thoughtful overview of the pitfalls encountered by women from gender biases to sexual harassment in the notoriously male dominated political arena. Featuring a range of voices that articulate a path towards women's political advancement and equality, Women Power and Political Representation is an important and timely resource for scholars, students, and women working professionally in Canadian and international politics. Indigenous Networks Jane Carey, Jane Lydon, 2014-06-27

This edited collection argues for the importance of recovering Indigenous participation within global networks of imperial power and wider histories of transnational connections. It takes up a crucial challenge for new imperial and transnational histories to explore the historical role of colonized and subaltern communities in these processes and their legacies in the present. Bringing together prominent and emerging scholars who have begun to explore Indigenous networks and transnational encounters and to consider the broader significance of extra local connections, exchanges, and mobility for Indigenous peoples, this work engages closely with some of the key historical scholarship on transnationalism and the networks of European imperialism. Chapters deploy a range of analytic scales including global, regional, and intra-Indigenous networks and methods including histories of ideas and cultural forms and biography as well as exploring contemporary legacies. In drawing these perspectives together, this book charts an important new direction in research. News Framing of Indigenous Politics in Canada Brian Budd, 2024-07-31

This book explores the news media's coverage of Indigenous settler reconciliation following the conclusion of the Truth and Reconciliation Commission of Canada (TRC). Using a comparative case study research design, the book examines news coverage of three significant Indigenous rights issues and events during the post-TRC era. The findings presented demonstrate that in the post-TRC era, the Canadian news media continue to produce systemic patterns in coverage which reject, marginalize, and erase the territorial rights and claims of Indigenous Peoples. The author concludes that rather than helping to move the relationship between Indigenous Peoples and settlers forward along a path of reconciliation, power sharing, and the resurgence of land-based self-determination, the news media are continuing to construct discourses and representations that work against the political objectives of Indigenous Peoples and reinforce settler colonial power relationships in Canada. First Nations Gaming in Canada Yale D.
