Aquaculture Management James W. Meade, 2012-12-06 Although some nations such as Japan have invested in aquaculture research and developed major aquaculture industries the opportunities for similar development in the United States remain largely unnoticed In a typical recent year the United States which claims 20% of the world's marine fisheries resources imported seafood worth 4.8 billion and exported 1.3 billion In addition to the 3.5 billion deficit in food fish was another 2.7 billion deficit for nonedible fishery products Next to oil fishery products constituted the second highest drain on the United States balance of payments and accounts for a significant portion of the foreign trade deficit Furthermore fish consumption has been increasing in North America In response to the demand for fishery products aquaculture managers not only have the opportunity to realize economic profit but in doing so can make an important contribution to reducing the national debt providing employment and enhancing our diet This book might be considered a farm management text for those in aquaculture It is intended to provide an introduction to aquaculture principles and an introduction to management including business and people management microeconomics and the concepts of efficiency and productivity I hope it will bridge the gap between conservationists the academic community and commercial culturists Abundant references should enable the reader to quickly access literature on most topics germane to the management of culture systems Selected Water Resources Abstracts, 1989 Field Guide to Appropriate Technology Barrett Hazeltine, Christopher

Royal Commission on Environmental Pollution, Sir Tom Blundell, 2004 This Royal Commission report on protection of the marine environment focuses on the impact of marine fishing in the seas around the UK both on fish populations and the wider ecosystem It considers a range of issues including the role of the fishing industry and its growth over the last 50 years the legal framework for the marine environment and fisheries at the national European and international levels the impact of fishing and the legacy of overfishing aquaculture fisheries marine protected areas improved fisheries management and a system of marine spatial planning The report concludes that as a society we give much lower priority to protecting our seas compared with the land and over fishing is a global problem which has led to the collapse of fisheries in many areas This situation requires significant urgent change which recognises the need for sustainable fisheries management and avoids the degradation of our seas placing it within the context of wider management of human activities in the marine environment Recommendations made include the introduction of a Marine Act to establish a statutory framework with strategic objectives for marine environmental protection a move away from a presumption in favour of fishing rights to a precautionary approach which requires demonstration that fishing activity is environmentally sustainable establishing a network of marine protected areas within the UK over the next five years which would lead to 30 per cent of the UK's exclusive economic zone being closed to commercial fishing and a change in the emphasis of research away from management of fish populations towards a wider focus on the marine environment Basic Principles of Aquaculture
