Read the history facts below, then draw them past 19th century, Victorian steam engine, and continue to play our fun today.

Read: Margaret I. Knight

Read: George Stephenson, James Watt

Margaret I. Knight was born in Wrentham, MA on 27th February 1804 to her father, James Knight, and her mother, Hannah. Her father passed away when she was young. The reason that Margaret married only to have children and work in a mill was that she was not a child.

At 15, Margaret attended an academy at the mill. She decided to work as a sewing machine for the mill machine, which is thought to have helped her to understand the machine.

In 1827, Margaret was employed by the Hibernian Paper Bag Company. In 1834, she invented a machine that folded and glued paper to form flat-bottomed paper bags. Her father knew that she was a genius for Margaret and that he must not give the right to sell the design for her.

Margaret continued working until death, creating a number of designs for the rest of her life.

Did You Know...?

During the Victorian era, women were not as intelligent as men. They were all not aware that Margaret was capable of creating useful things.

Read: George Washington Carver

Read: George Stephenson, James Watt

George Washington Carver was a Black teacher, scientist and inventor. He became known as 'the peanut man' due to his research that used peanuts to create many useful things and products.

George was born into slavery in the early 1850s to an enslaved woman named by Peter Carver. In 1865, slavery ended but Peter and his wife, Susan, decided to continue to look after and educate George and his brother in Peter Carver. George was educated in school.
