Media Bias in Reporting Social Research? Martyn Hammersley, 2007-01-24 In recent years, the importance of disseminating the findings of social research has been given increased emphasis. The most effective way in which this can be done is via the mass media. However, there are frequent complaints that media coverage of social and educational research is very limited and often distorted. Through a detailed analysis of a particular case about ethnic inequalities in educational achievement, this book examines some of the processes involved in the reporting of research findings and their implications for judgements about media distortion and bias. This volume is relevant to many fields including education, media studies, cultural studies, sociology, and social policy.

Reclaiming the Teaching Discourse in Higher Education Ian M. Kinchin, 2025-02-20. This book examines university teaching to encourage a move away from the singular lens of neoliberalism towards more a pluralistic stance that inspires a healthy diversity of theories and practices. University teaching is dominated by neoliberal cultures of measurement, consumerism, and deficit, generating a monocultural narrative that disenfranchises the higher education teaching community. Collaborative communities of support are now perceived as performative regimes of surveillance, and existing injustices in the education system have been amplified by institutional responses to the COVID 19 pandemic. This book offers a reappraisal of the current state of university teaching and reimaginings of potential futures. Inspired by emerging perspectives in educational research and building upon Biesta's notion of the rediscovery of teaching, the book encourages an escape from accepted wisdom, liberating teaching from the bonds of reductive binary and linear thinking and accepting the need for a plurality of theoretical perspectives. While universities use popular terms such as student-centredness, global excellence, active learning, and so on, and will highlight key performance metrics such as student satisfaction or teaching excellence awards, the reality is that much current teaching practice is rather traditional, teacher-centred, passive, and content-heavy. Despite managerial emphasis on best practice and evidence-based practice, teaching is not reducible to a simple set of competencies, and student learning is not adequately summarised as a list of graduate attributes. Teaching is relational and highly context-dependent, and our discussion of teaching should recognise this. The performative culture pervading many campuses can dampen down large-scale innovation, leaving marginalised pockets of subversive collaboration and experimentation to operate below the corporate radar. Here, the contributors give voice to some of those emerging ideas and challenge neoliberal orthodoxy.

Researching Education Kanka Mallick, Gajendra Verma, 2005-07-19. This book provides the reader with an introduction to the world of educational research, helping the reader understand the terminology and issues and providing guidance on initiating and implementing research studies.

Constructing Educational Inequality Peter Foster, Roger Gomm, Martyn Hammersley, 2005-06-21. The issue of educational opportunity has long been of public concern and a major focus for educational research. As a result, there is now a substantial body of research findings in this field, both quantitative and qualitative. This work relates to various levels of the educational system and to different categories of student, but particularly social class, gender, ethnicity, and race. The central trend has been to find persisting inequalities despite reform at system, institutional, and classroom levels. Furthermore, the educational system is frequently portrayed as playing a key role in reproducing wider social and economic inequalities.

This book examines the status of educational inequality as a social problem explores the conceptual issues surrounding it assesses a representative sample of recent research and seeks to clarify the relevant methodological ground rules thereby laying the basis for future research in the field Research Methods in Education Louis Cohen, Lawrence Manion, Keith Morrison, 2017-10-12 This thoroughly updated and extended eighth edition of the long running bestseller Research Methods in Education covers the whole range of methods employed by educational research at all stages Its five main parts cover the context of educational research research design methodologies for educational research methods of data collection and data analysis and reporting It continues to be the go to text for students academics and researchers who are undertaking understanding and using educational research and has been translated into several languages It offers plentiful and rich practical advice underpinned by clear theoretical foundations research evidence and up to date references and it raises key issues and questions for researchers planning conducting reporting and evaluating research This edition contains new chapters on Mixed methods research The role of theory in educational research Ethics in Internet research Research questions and hypotheses Internet surveys Virtual worlds social network software and netography in educational research Using secondary data in educational research Statistical significance effect size and statistical power Beyond mixed methods using Qualitative Comparative Analysis QCA to integrate cross case and within case analyses Research Methods in Education is essential reading for both the professional researcher and anyone involved in educational and social research The book is supported by a wealth of online materials including PowerPoint slides useful weblinks practice data sets downloadable tables and figures from the book and a virtual interactive self paced training programme in research methods These resources can be found at www.routledge.com/cw/cohen Research Methods and Methodologies in Education Robert Coe, Michael Waring, Larry V Hedges, James Arthur, 2017-03-20 Best selling all encompassing textbook for research methods in education
