A History of British Publishing covers six centuries of publishing in Britain from before the invention of the printing press to the electronic era of today. John Feather places Britain and her industries in an international marketplace and examines just how British publishing really is. Considering not only the publishing industry itself but also the areas affecting and affected by it, Feather traces the history of publishing books in Britain and examines education, politics, technology, law, religion, custom, class, finance, production, and distribution. The onslaught of global corporations. Specifically designed for publishing and book history courses, this is the only book to give an overall history of British publishing and will be an invaluable resource for all students of this fascinating subject. The Professional Literary Agent in Britain, 1880-1920 Mary Ann Gillies, 2007-01-01 Breaking new ground in the study of British literary culture during an important transitional period, this new work by Mary Ann Gillies focuses on the professional literary agent whose emergence in Britain around 1880 coincided with and accelerated the transformation of both publishing and authorship. Like other recent studies in book and print culture, The Professional Literary Agent in Britain 1880-1920 starts from the central premise that the business of authorship is inextricably linked with the aesthetics of literary praxis. Rather than provide a broad overview of the period, however, Gillies focuses on a specific figure, the professional literary agent. She then traces the influence of two prominent agents: A. P. Watt, generally acknowledged as the first professional literary agent, and J. B. Pinker, the leading figure in the second wave of agents focusing on their respective relationships with two key clients. The case studies not only provide insight into the business dynamics of the literary world at this time but also illustrate the shifting definition of literature itself during the period. The Cambridge Bibliography of English Literature Joanne Shattock, 1999 Publishing in the First World War M. Hammond, S. Towheed, 2007-05-16 This book explores the publishing and reading practices formed and changed by the First World War. From an exploration of British and Australian trench journals to the impact of war on the literary figures of the home front, the essays provide new information about the production, circulation, and reception of reading matter during this time      A History of Applied Linguistics Kees de Bot, 2015-03-05 This book provides one perspective on how Applied Linguistics has been defined and how the field of Applied Linguistics has developed over the last 30 years The author addresses themes like why formal linguistic theories lost so much ground and how the interest in more socially oriented approaches grew He also addresses the impact of Applied Linguistics on language teaching Adopting a theme based approach the structure of this book is largely defined by the topics covered in interviews with 40 leading international figures selected by the author including Rod Ellis Diane Larsen Freeman Susan Gass Henry Widdowson Suresh Canagarajah and Claire Kramsch These data are supplemented by questionnaires from a further fifty applied linguists also selected by the author This will be of interest to anyone studying or researching Applied Linguistics and will also be relevant to those in the related area of English Language Teaching      Work and the Nineteenth-Century Press Andrew King, 2022-11-23 Extending the limits of the award winning Routledge Handbook to Nineteenth Century Periodicals and Newspapers 2016 and its companion volume and also award winning Researching the Nineteenth Century Press Case Studies 2017 Work and the Nineteenth Century Press Living Work for Living People advances our knowledge of how our identities have become inextricably defined by work The collection s innovative focus on the nineteenth century British press s relationship to work illuminates an area whose effects are still evident today but which has been almost totally neglected hitherto Offering bold new interpretative frameworks and provocative methodologies in media history and literary studies developed by an exciting group of new and established talent this volume seeks to set a new research agenda for nineteenth century interdisciplinary studies      Dictionary of Nineteenth-century Journalism in Great Britain and Ireland Laurel Brake, Marysa Demoor, 2009 A large scale reference work covering the journalism industry in 19th Century Britain      Popular imperialism and the military, 1850-1950 John M. MacKenzie, 2017-03-01 Colonial war played a vital part in transforming the reputation of the military and placing it on a standing equal to that of the navy The book is concerned with the interactive culture of colonial warfare with the representation of the military in popular media at home and how these images affected attitudes towards war itself and wider intellectual and institutional forces It sets out to relate the changing image of the military to these fundamental facts For the dominant people they were an atavistic form of war shorn of guilt by Social Darwinian and racial ideas and rendered less dangerous by the increasing technological gap between Europe and the world Attempts to justify and understand war were naturally important to dominant people for the extension of imperial power was seldom a peaceful process The entertainment value of war in the British imperial experience does seem to have taken new and more intensive forms from roughly the middle of the nineteenth century Themes such as the delusive seduction of martial music the sketch of the music hall song powerful mythic texts of popular imperialism and heroic myths of empire are discussed extensively The first important British war correspondent was William Howard Russell 1820 1907 of The Times in the Crimea The 1870s saw a dramatic change in the representation of the officer in British battle painting Up to that point it was the officer s courage tactical wisdom and social prestige that were put on display      For Home, Country, and Race Stephen J.
