Guide To Conservation For Metal Detectorists:

Guide to Conservation for Metal Detectorists Richard Hobbs, Celia Honeycombe, Sarah C. Watkins, 2002 Before undertaking any kind of conservation the finder of any type of historical metal should be aware of a number of technical considerations. These are spelled out in this simple step by step guide which has been written by experts for total amateurs.

Archaeology Versus Metal Detecting Peter G. Spackman, 2024-11-30 Examines the contentious relationship between archaeology and metal detecting revealing historical tensions and evolving practices. This book offers a no holds barred insight into the often passionate sometimes controversial subject of tension and mistrust between the worlds of archaeology and metal detecting with the intent of shedding new light upon and bringing into the open some of the working practices procedures and thoughts which have fuelled an ill wind that flurries through levels of archaeological academia Beginning in the mists of history the author explores the birth of archaeological investigation from a Kings search the grave robbers through the antiquarian collectors museum artifact collections through to a profession which appears these days to rely upon the construction industry and its commercialism for survival Integrating various sources of information to highlight analytical information as well cultural social and economic intervention to form an unbiased argument The later appearance of metal detecting as a hobby which fired discontent distrust and deliberate efforts to either govern or ban the hobby This distrust is echoed by the author's extensive research which uncovered a deep set denial of the use by archaeologists of an innovative invention which has become an essential tool for artifact recovery the metal detector This hobby also listed as a sport boasts a practitioner membership of over thirty five thousand in the UK alone the history of which is covered in depth from the development of electro magnetism leading to an ever increasing number of inventions including machines for the detection of explosive devices which morphed into the metal detector as we know it today The Watlington Hoard John Naylor, Eleanor Standley, 2022-06-16 Presenting the complete publication of the objects and coins in the Watlington Hoard the authors discuss its wider implications for our understanding of hoarding in late 9th century southern Britain interactions between the kingdoms of Wessex and Mercia and the movements of the Viking Great Army after the Battle of Edington in 878

The Handbook of British Archaeology Lesley Adkins, Roy Adkins, Victoria Leitch, 2017-04-13 For over 25 years The Handbook of British Archaeology has been the foremost guide to archaeological methods artefacts and monuments providing clear explanations of all specialist terms used by archaeologists This completely revised and updated edition is packed with the latest information and now includes the most recent developments in archaeological science Meticulously researched every section has been extensively updated by a team of experts There are chapters devoted to each of the archaeological periods found in Britain as well as two chapters on techniques and the nature of archaeological remains All the common artefacts types of sites and current theories and methods are covered The growing interest in post medieval and industrial archaeology is fully explored in a brand new section dealing with these crucial periods Hundreds of new illustrations enable

Handbook of Museum Archaeology Alice Stevenson, 2022-08-25 This Handbook provides a transnational reference point for critical engagements with the legacies of and futures for global archaeological collections It challenges the common misconception that museum archaeology is simply a set of procedures for managing and exhibiting assemblages Instead this volume advances museum archaeology as an area of reflexive research and practice addressing the critical issues of what gets prioritized by and researched in museums by whom how and why Through twenty eight chapters authors problematize and suggest new ways of thinking about historic contemporary and future relationships between archaeological fieldwork and museums as well as the array of institutional and cultural paradigms through which archaeological enquiries are mediated Case studies embrace not just archaeological finds but also archival field notes photographic media archaeological samples and replicas Throughout museum activities are put into dialogue with other aspects of archaeological practice with the aim of situating museum work within a more holistic archaeology that does not privilege excavation or field survey above other aspects of disciplinary engagement These concerns will be grounded in the realities of museums internationally including Latin America Africa Asia Oceania North America and Europe In so doing the common heritage sector refrain best practice is not assumed to solely emanate from developed countries or European philosophies but instead is considered as emerging from and accommodated within local concerns and diverse museum cultures Finding Fulford - the Search for the First Battle Of 1066 Charles Jones, 2011 The battle of Fulford was fought just south of York on 20th September 1066 between the Northern Earls and King Harald Hardrada leading a Norse army Harald Hardrada had the trecherous Earl Tostig the brother of King Harold II king of England as his ally Tostig might have devised the strategy that detained his brother defending the south coast from the expected invasion from Normandy But King Harold was already on his way north when the battle took place Finding Fulford sets out a confident hypothesis for the location based on the body of evidence and research undertaken to find the first of the three battles of that autumn The report finds that the literature identifies a location south of York and the geology uniquely points to Germany Beck as the only militarily significant ditch mentioned in several sources as the place of the battle Modelling the way the landscape has changed since 1066 allows the descriptions provided for the battle to be tested The reconstructed surface provides positive feedback for the literature and helps to make more sense of what was written in Norse sources about the course of the battle The emergence of substantial quantities of ferrous material just south of the Beck reinforces the claim of Germany Beck as the place of the battle These notable concentrations of ferrous finds including tools axes and other shaped billets were co located with hearth bottoms slag charcoal and tuy res fragments The shape of the billets suggests a military rather than a civil use The interpretation provided is of post battle reprocessing There was not one centrally organised workshop since the number and spread of hearths suggests a gold rush perhaps with each warband processing material These sites were found to corresponded closely to the assumed area of the fighting and no similar sites were found in the surrounding areas which was also surveyed It is also suggested that the work was disrupted by the defeat of the Viking invaders at Stamford Bridge five days after their victory at Fulford This is an important assumption as it helps explain why so much material was abandoned at Fulford in a pattern that has not yet been found elsewhere The interrupted reprocessing hypothesis also explains why other sites of similar antiquity have failed to yield a single weapon fragment If the recycling work had been completed only hearth debris would have been found so the Fulford site might be unique Almost as important as the evidence that has emerged was that no contra indicators were found to cast doubt on the proposed site nor were any consistent pointers to another location identified even though much work was devoted to searching for alternate sites before Germany Beck was identified as the locus The investigation of the Fulford battlefield was done under some unnecessarily restrictive conditions and a chapter is devoted to work that needs to be undertaken The evidence suggests that the site still has much to reveal Alongside the archaeological investigations the report relates the events of the three battles of 1066 and also provides a detailed narrative of the battle based on all that has been revealed by the work The whole style of the work is designed to make it accessible to any Antiquity Osbert Guy Stanhope Crawford, 2003 Includes section Reviews Wilderness Supplement interested reader to the Draft Resource Management Plan/environmental Impact Statement for the Lander Resource Area, Lander, Federal Register ,2013 Proposed wilderness program for the Safford District wilderness EIS Wyoming ,1985 area United States.
