poultry houses to provide even more ventilation than open front housing The principles of open front housing were taken to extremes in some parts of the country with surprisingly good results In California chicken houses were so open that they didn't have walls at all Just a roof This method was used as far north as Oregon in the Fifties and worked at least as well as conventional houses The improved air quality made up for the increased wind chill While the large producers have consistently embraced the benefits of fresh air small flock owners gradually reverted to the kind of under ventilated chicken coops that was common in the Nineteenth century The need to keep baby chicks warm trains all of us to be obsess over providing warmth and exclude drafts and it's hard to do the opposite when the chicks are older Even during the heyday of open front housing there was a saying that the best chicks come out of the sorriest houses meaning that even experienced farmers couldn't resist shutting up their houses too tightly and that only a drafty dilapidated house could prevent this from doing harm Things are even worse now since most people have never even heard of the benefits of fresh air for poultry We're proud to be able to bring the Fresh Air Revolution into the Twenty First Century
