Walker & sons), 1850 The Papers of Jefferson Davis Jefferson Davis, 1983-04-01 May Seaton Dix Associate Editor Richard E Beringer Visiting Coeditor In Volume 4 of The Papers of Jefferson Davis which covers the years 1849 to 1852 Davis had clearly chosen politics as his life's work He relished in his role as Mississippi's senior senator and willingly assumed the responsibility of being a national spokesman for the South This period also saw a number of events in Davis' personal life notably the birth of his first child and the beginning of a long estrangement from his brother Joseph In January 1849 Davis signed the Southern Address although he occasionally disagreed with the extreme positions of its author John C Calhoun Outside the Senate Davis supported the objectives of the Nashville Convention and later the idea of a southern congress During the crisis of 1850 Davis spoke often on such key issues as the regulation of slavery in the territories the extension of the Missouri Compromise line the admission of California the Texas New Mexico boundary the continuation of the slave trade in the District of Columbia and the Fugitive Slave Act In 1851 he proposed purchasing camels for military transportation and urged that a Pacific railroad route be considered in the definition of the Mexican boundary As a loyal Democrat Davis had supported Lewis Cass in 1848 but he was a conspicuous personal favorite of Zachary Taylor the new Whig president and his former father-in-law In 1850 Taylor reportedly intervened to prevent a duel between Illinois representative William H Bissell and Davis who was incensed by Bissell's remarks about the Mississippi regiment at Buena Vista. Soon after joining the Taylor family at the president's deathbed in July 1850, Davis defended Taylor's Mexican War performance in a well-publicized Senate speech. Between sessions in 1849, Davis canvassed Mississippi, addressing gatherings throughout the state in favor of congressional candidates. He warned of northern aggressions yet urged the exhaustion of all means of peaceful resistance before secession be considered. When he returned home after the arduous 1850 session, he defended his course, denying charges that he was a disunionist. In February 1850, Davis had been reelected to the Senate for a full six-year term, but in September 1851, he resigned to accept the State Rights nomination for governor in opposition to Union nominee Henry Foote. Although illness precluded much active campaigning in the few weeks before the election, Davis substantially reduced the Union lead and lost by a narrow margin. A private citizen for the first time since 1845, Davis continued his involvement in politics. Despite nagging personal problems and ill health, he promoted Democratic unity and took to the stump for Franklin Pierce in 1852.
