this book interrogates the current regime and sets out a framework for improving its future In recent decades and especially since the global financial crisis a number of important initiatives have focused on developing the mechanisms for managing the insolvency of multinational enterprises and financial institutions The book considers the effectiveness of the current system and identifies the gaps that could be bridged by adopting certain strategies and tools to improve the system further The book first discusses the theoretical debate regarding cross border insolvency and surveys the strengths and weaknesses of the prevailing method modified universalism in its application to both commercial entities and financial institutions consequently identifying a single set of emerging norms The book argues that adhering to these norms more robustly would enhance global welfare and produce the best outcomes for businesses and institutions By drawing upon sources from international law as well as behavioural and economic theory the book offers a blueprint for meeting the demands of future cross border insolvencies It considers how to translate modified universalism into binding international law and how to choose the right instrument for cross border insolvency as well as the impact that instrument design has on decisions and choices It explores how to encourage compliance and proposes mechanisms that could potentially overcome or at least take into account behavioural biases in decision making Lived Economies of Default Joe Deville, 2015-02-11 Consumer credit borrowing using credit cards store cards and personal loans is an important and routine part of many of our lives But what happens when these everyday forms of borrowing go bad when people start to default on their loans and when they cannot or will not repay It is this poorly understood controversial but central part of both the consumer credit industry and the lived experiences of an increasing number of people that this book explores Drawing on research from the interior of the debt collections industry as well as debtors own accounts and historical research into technologies of lending and collection it examines precisely how this ever more sophisticated globally connected market functions It focuses on the highly intimate techniques used to try and recoup defaulting debts from borrowers as well as on the collection industry s relationship with lenders Joe Deville follows a journey of default from debtors borrowing practices to the intrusion of collections technologies into their homes and everyday lives to the collections organisation to attempts by debtors to seek outside help In the process he shows how to understand this particular market we need to understand the central role played within it by emotion and affect By opening up for scrutiny an area of the economy which is often hidden from view this book makes a major contribution both to understanding the relationship between emotion and calculation in markets and the role of consumer credit in our societies and economies This book will be of interest to students teachers and researchers in a range of fields including sociology anthropology cultural studies economics and social psychology The British National Bibliography Arthur James Wells, 2009 Guide to Reference Books Isadore Gilbert Mudge, 1929
