Woman between Two Kingdoms Leslie Castro-Woodhouse, 2020-12-15 Woman between Two Kingdoms explores the story of Dara Rasami one of 153 wives of King Chulalongkorn of Siam during the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries Born in a kingdom near Siam called Lan Na Dara served as both hostage and diplomat for her family and nation Thought of as a harem by the West Siam's Inner Palace actually formed a nexus between the domestic and the political Dara's role as an ethnic Other among the royal concubines assisted the Siamese in both consolidating the kingdom's territory and building a local version of Europe's hierarchy of civilizations Dara Rasami's story provides a fresh perspective on both the sociopolitical roles played by Siamese palace women and Siam's response to the intense imperialist pressures it faced in the late nineteenth century Thanks to generous funding from the Andrew W Mellon Foundation through The Sustainable History Monograph Pilot the ebook editions of this book are available as Open Access volumes from Cornell Open cornellpress.cornell.edu/cornell-open and other repositories

Spreading the Dhamma Daniel Veidlinger, 2006-08-31 How did early Buddhists actually encounter the seminal texts of their religion What were the attitudes held by monks and laypeople toward the written and oral Pali traditions In this pioneering work Daniel Veidlinger explores these questions in the context of the northern Thai kingdom of Lan Na Drawing on a vast array of sources including indigenous chronicles reports by foreign visitors inscriptions and palm leaf manuscripts he traces the role of written Buddhist texts in the predominantly oral milieu of northern Thailand from the fifteenth to the nineteenth centuries Veidlinger examines how the written word was assimilated into existing Buddhist and monastic practice in the region considering the use of manuscripts for textual study and recitation as well as the place of writing in the cultic and ritual life of the faithful He shows how manuscripts fit into the economy describes how they were made and stored and highlights the understudied issue of the cult of the book in Theravada Buddhism Looking at the wider Theravada world Veidlinger argues that manuscripts in Burma and Sri Lanka played a more central role in the preservation and dissemination of Buddhist texts By offering a detailed examination of the motivations driving those who sponsored manuscript production this study draws attention to the vital role played by forest dwelling monastic orders introduced from Sri Lanka in the development of Lan Na's written Pali heritage It also considers the rivalry between those monks who wished to preserve the older oral tradition and monks rulers and laypeople who supported the expansion of the new medium of writing

The Greenwood Encyclopedia of Homes through World History James M. Steele, 2009-03-30 The house throughout history in every place in the world has been built to provide shelter from the elements The dwellings that have resulted are as different as the people that have built them the social norms that prevailed at the time and place in which they were built and the natural environment that they adapted to Studying them now in a comprehensive way allows us to understand the social political economic and religious conditions that existed for their inhabitants They are a three dimensional record of culture Twenty four pages of color images along with black and white images through three volumes illustrate the homes of people throughout the world The volumes cover ancient times to the late Middle Ages the Renaissance to the Industrial Revolution and the Post Industrial Revolution to the Present Forest Guardians, Forest Destroyers Tim Forsyth, Andrew Walker, 2011-07-01 In this far reaching examination of environmental problems and politics in northern Thailand Tim Forsyth and Andrew Walker analyze deforestation water supply soil erosion use of agrochemicals and biodiversity in order to challenge popularly held notions of environmental crisis They argue that such crises have been used to support political objectives of state expansion and control in the uplands They have also been used to justify the alternative directions advocated by an array of NGOs In official and alternative discourses of economic development the peoples living in Thailand s hill country are typically cast as either guardians or destroyers of forest resources often depending on their ethnicity Political and historical factors have created a simplistic misleading and often scientifically inaccurate environmental narrative Hmong farmers for example are thought to exhibit environmentally destructive practices whereas the Karen are seen as linked to and protective of their ancestral home Forsyth and Walker reveal a much more complex relationship of hill farmers to the land to other ethnic groups and to the state They conclude that current explanations fail to address the real causes of environmental problems and unnecessarily restrict the livelihoods of local people The authors critical assessment of simplistic environmental narratives as well as their suggestions for finding solutions will be valuable in international policy discussions about environmental issues in rapidly developing countries Moreover their redefinition of northern Thailand s environmental problems and their analysis of how political influences have reinforced inappropriate policies demonstrate new ways of analyzing how environmental science and knowledge are important arenas for political control This book makes valuable contributions to Thai studies and more generally to the fields of environmental science ecology geography anthropology and political science as well as to policy making and resource management in the developing world
