Maintenance Costs and Life Cycle Cost Analysis Diego Galar, Peter Sandborn, Uday Kumar, 2017-09-18. Authors have attempted to create coherent chapters and sections on how the fundamentals of maintenance cost should be organized to present them in a logical and sequential order. Necessarily, the text starts with importance of maintenance function in the organization and moves to life cycle cost (LCC) considerations followed by the budgeting constraints. In the process, they have intentionally postponed the discussion about intangible costs and downtime costs later on in the book, mainly due to the controversial part of it when arguing with managers. The book will be concluding with a short description of a number of sectors where maintenance cost is of critical importance. The goal is to train the readers for a deeper study and understanding of these elements for decision making in maintenance, more specifically in the context of asset management. This book is intended for managers, engineers, researchers, and practitioners directly or indirectly involved in the area of maintenance. The book is focused to contribute towards better understanding of maintenance cost and use of this knowledge to improve the maintenance process.

Key Features: Emphasis on maintenance cost and life cycle cost especially under uncertainty. Systematic approach of how cost models can be applied and used in the maintenance field. Compiles and reviews existing maintenance cost models. Consequential and direct costs considered. Comparison of maintenance costs in different sectors: infrastructure, manufacturing, transport.

They look at mandatory quota policies legislated versus voluntary policies, goals and timetables, restrictions, and other policies, as well as recruitment, selection, compensation, performance appraisal, promotion, training, and career development. Their findings will prove useful for training managers of companies with global operations.

Limited Access - Exploring the Barriers to Executive Style Graduate Degree Programs for Women of Childbearing Age Allyson Friesen, 2008. Women make up over half of the population in Canada yet they comprise less than half of the participants in many executive graduate degree programs and only 34 percent of managers and administrators in the work force. For many women of childbearing age, these statistics provide insight into the cycle of frustration encountered when they seek admittance to graduate programs. Despite the changes that have taken place in a workforce where more education is required to obtain positions that could previously be achieved without a graduate degree or professional designation, executive graduate degree programs have failed to adapt their programs to meet educational needs of women and their changing roles. Further, most recent literature focuses on the successful careers of women over 40. Most of these women, however, are childless and single or they are on their second marriage with stepchildren. It was therefore important to obtain feedback from women planning for a successful career who anticipated the need to balance a career and family. This study concentrated on the barriers that limit access for women ages 25 to 39 to executive graduate degree programs. The Science, Treatment, and Prevention of Antisocial Behaviors: Evidence based practice Diana H.
