Portuguese: Poems Brandon Shimoda, 2013-02-26 The first book in a series of collaborations between Tin House and Octopus Books Brandon Shimoda's Portuguese introduces a powerful new voice in American poetry The poems in Portuguese began while Brandon rode city buses around Seattle and were inspired by his fellow passengers their voices and their minds their faces and their bodies their exuberances and infirmities and the ways in which they enlivened and darkened the days at once It was with and within these people that poetry seemed most alive At the same time they began as responses to the words and writings of visual artists mostly painters whom Brandon was reading while riding the bus especially Etel Adnan Eugène Delacroix Alberto Giacometti Paul Klee and Joan Mitchell all of whom appear in the book It was with and within these people also that poetry seemed most alive In both senses Portuguese is a work of color Portuguese owes also a debt to a visit to Beirut Lebanon 2009 six months spent in a cabin in the woods of western Maine 2010 2011 and the Japanese poets Kazuko Shiraishi Ryuichi Tamura and Minoru Yoshioka and their translators It was written primarily in Seattle Washington Beirut Lebanon and Weld Maine though revised in Albany California Beacon New York and St Louis Missouri In that sense Portuguese is a travelogue as well as a work of restlessness Throughout writing the poems that became Portuguese the presiding struggle was with poetry itself the form and its impulses voice and mind face and body exuberance and infirmity as well as with the act of writing The book actually began in the early 1980s while on the bus to elementary school in a small town in New England when Brandon was taunted for being Portuguese In that sense Portuguese returns its author to this moment in which he felt challenged to become what he was being called however falsely and despite feeling confused flushed and afraid In that sense Portuguese is a work of crossdressing However Portuguese is both more and less than all these things It was and is a way to keep up with life in the form of drawing observations and feelings on paper and to give form to the energy making up some part of memory It is the fourth book in a series that began with The Alps The Girl Without Arms and O Bon In this sense and in all those above it is an act of preservation and therefore a work for his friends his family and for love
