Fear Falls Away Janice Emily Bowers, 2015-11-01 Jan Bowers lives in the right place A lover of nature and the outdoors an avid hiker and backpacker she is surrounded by mountain ridges peaks and canyons of almost every description In this book she invites us to come along and find out why some of these places are special why some of them stay in her mind long after she has returned to the workaday world of the city Readers have come to expect the best from this writer termed a rare talent uncommonly good at the craft by Wilderness magazine Her new book is filled with creeks and meadows tiny ferns and towering oaks bears and butterflies and Red tailed Hawks We see gray clouds clogging the sky in a canyon wildly almost tastelessly romantic as full of clouds as a tea kettle with steam and we startle a female grouse and her half dozen fuzzy chicks exploding from underfoot like billiard balls scattered with a cue stick Faced with the prospect of moving to another place Bowers finds herself thinking about the familiar world in new and unfamiliar ways Through her eyes too we see how an interest in nature and the outdoors developed from early childhood and how simple curiosity has led her to the most surprising discoveries At odd and unexpected moments her work also seems to bring new insights into herself and her life as a writer a wife and a mother These pages promise a new adventure at every turn in the trail For sheer terror there s a climb up the face of Baboquivari for laughs there s the great bagworm caper and for some quiet truths there are themes of gain and loss of connection and reconciliation Crunching through winter snow or sweating under summer sun we know we re in the hands of an experienced guide And we know we couldn t ask for a better companion

Getting Over the Color Green Scott Slovic, 2001 Desert vistas are often deemed vacant inhospitable wastelands Don t suggest that to Joy Harjo Pat Mora or other contemporary southwestern writers In these arid stretches often devoid of green today s southwestern writers see pyrotechnic colors and Gothic shapes that excite and often overwhelm the imagination And they capture this excitement in words that fix these desert images in the minds of readers who may too often look at the world through green colored glasses This anthology of contemporary nature writing from the Greater Southwest brings together a host of writers including peers of Edward Abbey such as Charles Bowden and Ann Zwinger and representatives of a new generation of writers such as Rick Bass and Terry Tempest Williams The book is an eclectic blend of nonfiction and fiction field notes and poetry through which artists of diverse backgrounds both celebrate and illuminate the unique vitality and complexity of southwestern literature proving that green is only one of many colors on their palette The selections included here range all across the southwestern landscape and explore adventures in the wild topics in natural history living close to the land and efforts at conservation and restoration They clearly demonstrate that there is grace and beauty in this often maligned part of the world both in the human traditions that have developed in the region and in the natural features of the desert itself better than just about anyone else and in this book he tracks the changes he observes in plant and animal life over the course of a drought year Combining scientific knowledge with years of exploring the desert he describes the variety of ways in which the wait for rain takes place and what happens when it finally comes The desert is a land of five seasons featuring two summers hot dry months followed by monsoon and Alcock looks at the changes that take place in an entire desert community over the course of all five He describes what he finds on hikes in the Utery Mountains near Phoenix where he has studied desert life over three decades and where frequent visits have enabled him to notice effects of seasonal variation that might escape a casual glance Blending a personal perspective with field observation Alcock shows how desert ecology depends entirely on rainfall He touches on a wide range of topics concerning the desert s natural history noting the response of saguaro flowers to heat and the habits of predators whether soaring red tailed hawk or tiny horned lizard He also describes unusual aspects of insects that few desert hikers will have noticed such as the disruptive color pattern of certain grasshoppers that is more effective than most camouflage When the Rains Come is brimming with new insights into the desert from the mating behaviors of insects to urban sprawl and features photographs that document changes in the landscape as drought years come and go It brings us the desert in the harshest of times and shows that it is still teeming with life
