Minnesota Branch, Charles Marvin Gates, 1933 Listening to the Fur Trade Daniel Robert Laxer, 2022-04-05 As fur traders were driven across northern North America by economic motivations the landscape over which they plied their trade was punctuated by sound shouting singing dancing gunpowder rattles jingles drums fiddles and very occasionally bagpipes Fur trade interactions were in a word noisy Daniel Laxer unearths traces of music performance and other intangible cultural phenomena long since silenced allowing us to hear the fur trade for the first time Listening to the Fur Trade uses the written record oral history and material culture to reveal histories of sound and music in an era before sound recording The trading post was a noisy nexus populated by a polyglot crowd of highly mobile people from different national linguistic religious cultural and class backgrounds They found ways to interact every time they met and facilitating material interests and survival went beyond the simple exchange of goods. Trust and good relations often entailed gift giving reciprocity was performed with dances, songs and firearm salutes. Indigenous protocols of ceremony and treaty making were widely adopted by fur traders who supplied materials and technologies that sometimes changed how these ceremonies sounded. Within trading companies, masters and servants were on opposite ends of the social ladder but shared songs in the canoes and lively dances during the long winters at the trading posts. While the fur trade was propelled by economic and political interests, listening to the Fur Trade uncovers the songs and ceremonies of First Nations people, the paddling songs of the voyageurs and the fiddle music and step dancing at the trading posts that provided its pulse.

Canadian Diaries and Autobiographies William Matthews,

Rainy Lake House Theodore Catton, 2017-09-15. Exiles in Indian Country weaves together the biographies of three men who cast their fortunes with the Western fur trade in the first quarter of the nineteenth century. John Tanner was a white Indian who was taken captive and raised by Ottawa and lived among the Ottawa and Ojibwa for thirty years hunting across the northern forests and plains of present day Ontario, Manitoba and northern Minnesota. Dr. John McLoughlin fled the law in Quebec at the age of eighteen to work for the Hudson's Bay Company in the Lake Superior region during its two decades of war with the North West Company. Major Stephen H. Long explored the northern borderlands in a time when the United States aimed to take over British Indian trade in its new western territories. The three men met at the HBC's Rainy Lake House near the Boundary Waters in 1823 after Tanner was badly wounded while trying to take his daughters out of Indian country to save them from being raped by the white traders. Foregrounding this incident, Theodore Catton examines the events leading up to this fateful encounter through a Rashomon-like tale about the British American Indian frontier. Through these three colliding vantage points, the book describes the world of the fur trade: American, British and Indian; imperial capital and labor; explorer, trader and hunter. In its competing viewpoints, Exiles in Indian Country deftly crafts one grand narrative out of three and reveals the perilous lives of the white adventurers and their Indian families who lived on the fringe, truly the hands of empire.
