Economic Progress And The Environment One Developing Countrys Policy Crisis:

Economic Progress and the Environment Douglas DeWitt Southgate, Morris D. Whitaker, 1994 This book provides a probing examination of problems unique to the world's poorest countries as they attempt to achieve environmentally sound economic development Using Ecuador as an example the authors present six case studies that focus on tropical deforestation farmland degradation inefficient water resource development oil industry pollution in Amazonian rainforests disturbance of coastal ecosystems and management of the Galapagos Islands The authors argue throughout the book that fundamental policy reforms are needed both to meet the challenge of mounting resource scarcity and to achieve sustainable economic progress They also make the case that resource users property rights must be strengthened market forces given freer reign and investment stepped up in human capital and in the rural economy's scientific and technological base Finally the book provides support for the notion that economic development and environmental conservation can be complementary provided that intelligent policies are implemented The book will be useful to development and resource economists resource management specialists and conservation professionals These cases also offer valuable insights for environmentally concerned general readers

Geography Government and Politics International Relations Sociology Oil Wealth and the Fate of the Forest Sven Wunder, 2003 Blueprint 4 D.W. Pearce, 2014-07-16 Blueprint 4 continues the theme of Blueprint 2 in looking at the opportunities for using market forces for environmental ends It assesses a range of possible imaginative global bargains which give all parties a self interested incentive to improve the global environment The book begins by reviewing the principle global issues to be addressed and then explains the mechanisms of resource degradation how economic systems fail the operation of trade on the environment and the effects of population growth and consumption patterns It then shows how environmental value can be captured and the basis means and institutions for doing so Bibliographie Internationale D'anthropologie Sociale Et Culturelle 1994 , 1995 The IBSS is the essential tool for librarians university departments research institutions and any public or private institution whose work requires access to up to date and comprehensive knowledge of the social sciences Reversing Deforestation Brent Sohngen, Douglas Southgate, 2024-12-10 Dire reports of surging deforestation in the Brazilian Amazon appear often in international headlines with commentators decrying the destruction of tree covered habitats as an act of environmental vandalism Although forest losses are alarming broader trends are bending in the direction of forest recovery In this book Brent Sohngen and Douglas Southgate address the long term recovery of forests in Latin America The authors synthesize trends in demography agricultural development and technological change and argue that slower population growth and increasing crop and tree yields in conjunction with protecting local ownership of natural resources have encouraged forest transition This book explores how market forces ownership arrangements and the enforcement of property rights have influenced this shift from net deforestation to net afforestation Forest transitions have happened before such as the recovery of tree covered habitats in Europe and the United States Signs of a similar transformation in land use are now present in Latin America Ending deforestation requires a strengthening of forest dwellers property rights while ensuring that biodiversity conservation is no longer treated as a value less externality The resulting forest landscape actively managed for ecosystem services will be more resilient as is needed to overcome climate change

Environmental Valuation in South Asia A. K. Enamul Haque, M. N. Murty, Priya Shyamsundar, 2011-08-15 This book is about understanding the value of environmental services in South Asia It provides an overview of different environmental problems in South Asia and examines how economic valuation techniques can be used to assess these problems It brings together multiple case studies on valuation undertaken by economists and environmental scientists from Bangladesh India Pakistan Nepal and Sri Lanka under the aegis of the South Asian Network for Development and Environmental Economics SANDEE The book addresses the challenges of valuing environmental changes that are unique to developing countries Each chapter starts with a description of an environmental problem and the valuation strategy used followed by a discussion of estimation methods and results It is designed to serve as a reference book for students teachers researchers non government organizations and practitioners of environmental valuation Those interested in development and environmental economics and natural resource management policies will also find it useful

Tropical Forest Conservation Douglas DeWitt Southgate, 1998 Attempts to halt the destruction of rain forests and other natural habitats in the tropics have met with little success In particular national parks like those found in wealthy nations have proven difficult to establish in Africa Asia and South and Central America More often than not people inhabiting areas designated for protection resist being told by outsiders that they must change how and where they live Alternative approaches frequently embodied in integrated conservation and development projects ICDPs are now being pursued The goal is to address local communities desires for improved standards of living while simultaneously meeting conservation objectives Nature based tourism and sustainable harvesting of forest products are the centerpieces of ICDPs and related initiatives This book assesses the viability of conservation strategies predicated on the adoption of environmentally sound enterprises in and around threatened habitats Drawing on research in Brazil Costa Rica Ecuador and Peru and on his extensive experience working in South and Central America and the Caribbean the author demonstrates that it is rare for forest dwellers to derive much benefit from ecotourism the extraction of timber and other commodities or the collection of samples used in pharmaceutical research Often these activities are simply unprofitable Even when they are profitable the benefits tend not to accrue locally but instead are captured by outside firms and individuals who can provide important services like safe and reliable transportation The author contends that human capital formation and related productivity enhancing investment is the only sure path to economic progress and habitat conservation

Response to Land Degradation E M Bridges, 2019-04-24 This work is intended for advanced readers interested in methods of sustainable land management the prevention and control of land degradation It offers a coherent view of the situation concerning land degradation and the human response to the problem It is generally recognized that technological solutions alone cannot solve the problems of land degradation This book discusses the role of land use and land management policies programmes institutional innovations and economic incentives for the control and prevention of land degradation Special attention is given to legal issues at the international level and in individual countries

Ecosystems of Disturbed Ground L.R. Walker, 1999-12-17 As the human population inexorably grows its cumulative impact on the Earth's resources is hard to ignore The ability of the Earth to support more humans is dependent on the ability of humans to manage natural resources wisely Because disturbance alters resource levels effective management requires understanding of the ecology of disturbance This book is the first to take a global approach to the description of both natural and anthropogenic disturbance regimes that physically impact the ground Natural disturbances such as erosion volcanoes wind herbivory flooding and drought plus anthropogenic disturbances such as forestry grazing mining urbanization and military actions are considered Both disturbance impacts and the biotic recovery are addressed as well as the interactions of different types of disturbance Other chapters cover processes that are important to the understanding of disturbance of all types including soil processes nutrient cycles primary productivity succession animal behaviour and competition Humans react to disturbances by avoiding exacerbating or restoring them or by passing environmental legislation All of these issues are covered in this book Managers need better predictive models and robust data collections that help determine both site specific and generalized responses to disturbance Multiple disturbances have a complex effect on both physical and biotic processes as they interact This book provides a wealth of detail about the process of disturbance and recovery as well as a synthesis of the current state of knowledge about disturbance theory with extensive documentation Forests to Fight Poverty Ralph C. Schmidt, Joyce K. Berry, John C. Gordon, 1999-01-01 The link between poverty and deforestation in developing countries is of increasing global concern The authors of this clear hope filled book explore the diverse causes of tropical deforestation and offer remedies appropriate to the biology and culture of different regions They show how modern forestry techniques enable us to alleviate poverty without destroying forests Blueprint 4 David William Pearce, 1995 First Published in 1995 Routledge is an imprint of Taylor Francis an informa company Environmental Management Michael V. Russo, 2008-09-05 Increased concern about the natural environment has led to an urgent call for organizations to take action toward environmental stewardship This Second Edition of the groundbreaking Environmental Management Readings and Cases will inspire readers to find creative solutions to the challenges of maintaining sustainable enterprise while restoring our ecological community Featuring a highly esteemed group of contributors with content from premier journals including Harvard Business Review this comprehensive reader fills a major gap in the teaching of business and the environment New to the Second Edition More than two thirds of the book consists of new material addressing emerging and timely topics like environmental regulation green marketing environmental strategy and more The book features 11 new cases providing a platform for lively classroom discussion This edition adds a stronger international component highlighting the global nature of environmental management Accompanied by High Quality Ancillaries Instructor Resources on CD provide in depth teaching notes for both the readings and the cases course development guides including outlines and helpful charts providing visual links between readings cases that have been developed by the author and popular topics IRCDs are available to qualified instructors only by contacting Customer Care at 1 800 818 SAGE 7243 between 6 am 5 pm PT Intended Audience This reader serves as a stand alone or supplemental text for upper level undergraduate or graduate courses such as Environmental Management Green Marketing Clean Production Environmental Policy and Strategy and other courses in business and environmental studies Agricultural Technologies and Tropical Deforestation Arild Angelsen, David Kaimowitz, 2001-04-20 This book has been developed from a workshop on Technological change in agriculture and tropical deforestation organised by the Center for International Forestry Research and held in Costa Rica in March 1999 It explores how intensification of agriculture affects tropical deforestation using case studies from different geographical regions using different agricultural products and technologies and in differing demographic situations and market conditions Guidance is also given on future agricultural research and extension efforts Economics of Deforestation Sven Wunder, 2000-07-19

Tropical forests are disappearing at an unaltered pace giving way to alternative land uses This book gives an economic perspective on deforestation Following a survey of different deforestation definitions theories and empirical evidence a case study of Ecuador provides a versatile historical picture of factors affecting forest loss throughout different periods regions and ecosystems It is shown that policy and market failures alone cannot explain rapid deforestation decision makers follow a composite economic rationale in their continuous clearing of forests which can only be counteracted by concerted action

Globalized Fruit, Local Entrepreneurs Douglas Southgate, Lois Roberts, 2016-04-22 Globalized Fruit Local Entrepreneurs focuses on the role played by local growers and exporters in Ecuador which has been the world's leading banana exporter for more than sixty years without ever being dominated by foreign corporations Natural Resource Economics Barry C. Field, 2008-03-12 People make decisions regarding the use of natural resources every day from the individual recycling a sheet of paper to governments of large nations creating energy policy Those decisions ultimately affect people around the world Their motivation and results are best framed and analyzed using the tools of natural resource economics Field presents the methods and applications of the discipline in the latest edition of his popular text The updated book retains its successful structure first presenting basic economic principles as they apply to natural resource use and then examining the economic issues surrounding individual resources New material is included on energy demand and efficiency nonrenewable resources individual transferable fishing quotas water pricing agricultural cropland programs and the Endangered Species Act
