Leisure and Tourism Landscapes Cara Aitchison, Nicola E. MacLeod, Nicola E Macleod, Stephen J. Shaw, 2014-05-01 Increasingly significant as mediators of spatial identity and meaning leisure tourism culture and heritage are only now beginning to be located within the rapidly evolving discourses of poststructuralist geographies Exploring the influence of leisure and tourism on the production representation and consumption of landscape the first half of this important book focuses on different ways of seeing or representing landscape whereas the second half examines different forms of productive consumption in leisure and tourism Both symbolic and material spaces of leisure and tourism are also examined in relation to urban and rural landscapes heritage landscapes gendered landscapes and landscapes of sexuality and desire With a multidisciplinary approach and a strong theoretical content which builds on poststructuralist theories this is undoubtedly an important addition to literature in the field Mistress of the House Tim Dolin, 2016-12-05 This exploration of gender and property ownership in eight important novels argues that property is a decisive undercurrent in narrative structures and modes as well as an important gender signature in society and culture Tim Dolin suggests that the formal development of nineteenth century domestic fiction can only be understood in the context of changes in the theory and laws of property indeed femininity and its representation cannot be considered separately from property relations and their reform He presents original readings of novels in which a woman owns acquires or loses property focusing on exchanges between patriarchal cultural authority the woman question and narrative form and on the place of domestic fiction in a culture in which property relations and gender relations are subject to radical review Each chapter revolves around a representative text but refers substantially to other material both other novels and contemporary social legal political and feminist commentary Mapping Modernism Eve C. Sorum, 2006 The British Library General Catalogue of Printed Books, 1986 to 1987 British Library, 1988 Hermann Lea Gregory Stephens Cox, The Spectator, 1867 The British Library General Catalogue of Printed Books to 1975 British Library (London), Jim Emmett, 1979 Global West, American Frontier David M. Wrobel, 2013-10-15 This thoughtful examination of a century of travel writing about the American West overturns a variety of popular and academic stereotypes Looking at both European and American travelers accounts of the West from de Tocqueville's Democracy in America to William Least Heat Moon's Blue Highways David Wrobel offers a counter narrative to the nation's romantic entanglement with its western past and suggests the importance of some long overlooked authors lively and perceptive witnesses to our history who deserve new attention Prior to the professionalization of academic disciplines the reading public gained much of its knowledge about the world from travel writing Travel writers found a wide and respectful audience for their reports on history geography and the natural world in addition to reporting on aboriginal cultures before the advent of anthropology as a discipline Although in recent decades western historians have paid little attention to travel writing Wrobel demonstrates that this genre in fact offers an important and rich understanding of the American West one that extends and complicates a simple reading of the West that promotes the notions of Manifest Destiny or American exceptionalism Wrobel finds counterpoints to the mythic West of the nineteenth century in such varied accounts as George Catlin s Adventures of the Ojibbeway and Ioway Indians in England France and Belgium 1852 Richard Francis Burton s The City of the Saints 1861 and Mark Twain s Following the Equator 1897 reminders of the messy and contradictory world that people navigated in the past much as they do in the present His book is a testament to the instructive ways in which the best travel writers have represented the West General Catalogue of Printed Books British Museum.
