of the descendants of migrants taking ethnic Chinese as a case study Our core question is why in spite of debates worldwide about identity exclusion and rights do minority communities continue to suffer discrimination and attacks This question is asked in view of the growing incidence in recent years of racial conflicts between majority and minority communities and among minorities in both developed and developing countries The study examines national identity from the perspective of migrants descendants whose national identity may be more rooted than is often thought Concepts such as new ethnicities cultural fluidity and new and multiple identities feature in this examination These concepts highlight identity changes across generations and the need to challenge and reinterpret the meaning of nation and to review problems with policy initiatives designed to promote nation building in multi ethnic societies This book was originally published as a special issue of Ethnic and Racial Studies

Long Shadows Petra Rau, 2016-05-31 Few countries attribute as much importance to the Second World War and its memory as Britain arguably nowhere else has this conflict developed such longevity in cultural memory and retained such presence in contemporary culture Long Shadows is about how literature and film have helped shape this process in Britain More precisely the essays collected here suggest that this is a continuous work in progress subject to transgenerational revisions political expediencies commercial considerations and the vicissitudes of popular taste It would indeed be more accurate to speak of the meanings plural that the war has been given at various moments in British cultural life These semantic variations and fluctuations in cultural import are rooted in the specificity of the British war experience in the political aftermath of the war in Europe and in its significance for Britain's postwar position on the global stage In other words the books and films discussed in these essays respond to how the war has been interpreted and remembered what is at stake is the way in which the war has been emplotted as a hegemonic cultural narrative about Britain

The Passenger: Paris The Passenger, 2021-09-29 The best new writing photography art and reportage from and about Paris in the rich and engrossing series for literary travelers Times Literary Supplement Paris's postcard image has suffered multiple blows in recent years the November 2015 terrorist attacks the demonstrations of the yellow vests the riots in the suburbs Notre Dame in flames record heatwaves and the coronavirus Meanwhile soaring living costs are forcing many Parisians to leave the city Yet these are not just a series of unfortunate events They are phenomena from increasing population density to climate change from immigration to the repercussions of globalization and geopolitics that all metropolises in the world must face And in Paris today the mood is not one of defeat but of renewal from the city's ongoing environmental and urbanistic transformation to the fight by a new generation of chefs against the traditionalism of starred restaurants from the children of immigrants who take to the streets for the right to feel French to the women determined to break the sexism and stereotypes that dominate the fashion industry Is there anyone who seriously thinks they can teach Parisians how to make a revolution This volume includes Out of the Shadows by Tash Aw Against the Stars by Tommaso Melilli Afraid of Being Free by Samar Yazbek Plus the Champs Elysées between luxury and riots the French Republic between anti-Semitism and Islamophobia the most elegant Congolese dandies of all time one Parisian woman you will not encounter the city's legendary football team that is not the PSG and much more The Passenger readers will find none of the typical travel guide sections on where to eat or what sights to see Consider the books rather more like a literary vacation Publishers Weekly

The State of Race Sze Wei Ang, 2019-06-14 Contemporary ideas about race are often assumed to be products of specific locales and histories yet we find versions of the same ideas about race across countries and cultures How can we account for this paradox In The State of Race Sze Wei Ang argues that globalization has led to new ways of using racial stereotypes as shorthand for complex social relations in disparate national contexts Literature then provides a key to understanding these labels and the role that race has played in shoring up state power since World War II Ang contends that in an era marked by global economic dependence the nation state has only become more rather than less central to organizing social life via tropes of race that cast human and cultural differences in morally charged terms Focusing on a series of Asian American and Malaysian texts Ang tracks the significance of two figures in particular the model minority and the communist spy Appearing in novels politics and popular culture these stereotypes anchor powerful narratives about race global capital and state sovereignty In exploring the United States and Malaysia two countries that seem to not have much in common Ang reveals how they share very similar ways of conceptualizing race and sheds light on an emerging global story of value

Memory and Nation-Building Vandana Saxena, 2021-08-31 Nations are built by narrating their past Threads of common memories weave the fabric of the national

culture integrating the heterogenous communities into the idea of a single nation In multicultural societies the process is a messy one Different communities remember the past from perspectives that often clash with each other Multiple memories of a multicultural nation challenge the idea of a singular national identity and call for multiple forms of belonging Memory and Nation Building explores the contemporary images of World War II in Malaysian literature and the continuing significance of the conflict in the collective memory and nation building in Malaysia Given the multicultural nature of the nation the War memories of Malaysia are multiple and often contradictory In the contemporary Malaysian literature these memories embody the search for a historical narrative that would accommodate the cultural and ethnic diversity of the country Fiction and Faction in the Malay World Mohamad Rashidi Pakri, 2013-02-14 This book offers a variety of essays and perspectives on some of the foreigners and traders who came to the Malay World and wrote fiction and faction writing that portrays real people or events in a dramatised manner during their sojourn regardless of whether they continued to stay in the region returned to their home country or migrated to another country The essays tend to cross generic and disciplinary boundaries as the contributors of this book are drawn from various fields within the arts and humanities including history geography language and literature and translation All of them however deal with colonial texts the Malay World or primarily cover the period from the 18th to the 20th century Including readings of fiction diaries vignettes letters written by traders or colonial officers the uniqueness of this book lies in the personal private and or informal nature of the various documents studied The encounters of these outsiders with the natives not only offer fascinating historical insights into the Malay World but to a significant degree vividly express the views and personalities of the writers themselves as mediated through their assigned commercial and colonial roles
