Eros Agape and Philia Readings In The Philosophy Of Love:

Eros, Agape and Philia Alan Soble, 1989 The philosophy of love For centuries popular writers and respected scholars have written about and analyzed the phenomenon of love without exhausting its potential for contemporary debate By representing the three major traditions in the philosophy of love Platonic eros Christian agape and Aristotelian philia editor Alan Soble has not only examined the intellectual problem of what love is but has designed a dialogue among the three traditions in genuine philosophical style Eros is acquisitive egocentric or even selfish agape is a giving love Eros is an unconstant unfaithful love while agape is unwavering and continues to give despite ingratitude Eros is a love that responds to the merit or value of its object while agape creates value in its object as a result of loving it Finally eros is an ascending love the human's route to God agape is a descending love God's route to humans Philia is caught between eros and agape From the Introduction to Eros Agape and Philia ISSUES EXPLORED What is the state of love today as seen through the eyes of Plato Aristotle and Paul How do relations between the sexes illustrate the difficulties of love What are the nature and effects of exclusivity reciprocity and constancy What are the conceptual and psychological ties between sex and love Does it make any sense to think of love in moral terms

Built upon Love Alberto Perez-Gomez, 2008-02-15 A vision of architecture that transcends concerns of form and function and finds the connections between the architect's wish to design a beautiful world and architecture's imperative to provide a better place for society The forced polarity between form and function in considerations of architecture opposing art to social interests ethics to poetic expression obscures the deep connections between ethical and poetical values in architectural tradition Architecture has been and must continue to be writes Alberto Perez Gomez built upon love Modernity has rightly rejected past architectural excesses but Perez Gomez argues the materialistic and technological alternatives it proposes do not answer satisfactorily the complex desire that defines humanity True architecture is concerned with far more than fashionable form affordable homes and sustainable development it responds to a desire for an eloquent place to dwell one that lovingly provides a sense of order resonant with our dreams In Built upon Love Perez Gomez uncovers the relationship between love and architecture in order to find the points of contact between poetics and ethics between the architect's wish to design a beautiful world and architecture's imperative to provide a better place for society Eros as first imagined by the early lyric poets of classical Greece is the invisible force at the root of our capacity to create and comprehend the poetic image Perez Gomez examines the nature of architectural form in the light of eros seduction and the tradition of the poetic image in Western architecture He charts the ethical dimension of architecture tracing the connections between philia the love of friends that entails mutual responsibility among equals and architectural program He explores the position of architecture at the limits of language and discusses the analogical language of philia in modernist architectural theory Finally he uncovers connections between ethics and poetics describing a contemporary practice of architecture under the sign of love incorporating both eros and philia

On the Intrinsic Value of Everything Scott A. Davison, 2012-02-02 On the Intrinsic Value of Everything is an illuminating introduction to fundamental questions in ethics How and to what we assign value whether it is to events or experiences or objects or people is central to ethics Something is intrinsically valuable only if it would be valued for its own sake by all fully informed properly functioning persons Davison defends the controversial view that everything that exists is intrinsically valuable to some degree If only some things are intrinsically valuable what about other things Where and how do we draw the cutoff point If only living creatures are intrinsically valuable what does this imply for how we value the environment If everything has intrinsic value what practical implications does this have for how we live our lives How does this view fit with the traditional theistic idea that God is the source of goodness and truth Both critics and proponents of the concept of intrinsic value will find something of interest in this careful investigation of the basic value structure of the world
