Hausa Language A Descriptive Grammar:

The Hausa Language Mirra Aleksandrovna Smirnova,1982   Ethnic and Cultural Diversity in Nigeria Marcellina Ulunma Okehie-Offoha,Matthew N. O. Sadiku,1996 This collection of essays brings together for the first time a discussion on the multicultural and ethno linguistic groupings of Nigeria By employing historical and sociological perspectives each chapter provides an account of the origin beliefs and important ceremonial and traditional practices of each group

Borkent,J.J. Beylsmit,Mark Janse,1985-03-31   Lexical Knowledge in the Organization of Language Urs Egli,Peter E. Pause,Christoph Schwarze,Arnim von Stechow,Götz Wienold,1995-03-09 This book contains a selection of the papers given at an international conference at the University of Konstanz Germany in 1991 All contributions relate to the assumption that lexical knowledge plays a central role in the organization of language inasmuch as the components or modules of grammar come together and interact in the lexicon Originating in various traditions of linguistic thought however the individual papers reflect differing interests and are based upon different conceptions of the lexicon its status and interfaces There is the position of current generative linguistics which aims at accounting for structural properties of the lexicon within syntactic theory There is also the perspective of model theoretical semantics where borderline phenomena between lexical semantics and the semantics of sentence and text receive particular attention Still another group of papers directly discusses problems of lexical semantics focussing on representational and conceptual aspects of word meanings The notion of a two level semantics as well as cross linguistic analyses are characteristic of these contributions The book closes with a comparative and historical study of lexical evolution   Morphological Length and Prosodically Defective Morphemes Eva Zimmermann,2017 This work examines specific sound changes that cannot be explained by phonological means alone but crucially rely on morphological information It offers a unified theoretical account of these phenomena as well as a rich database of attested patterns in the world s languages   Standard Negation Matti Miestamo,2008-08-22 This book is the first cross linguistic study of clausal negation based on an extensive and systematic language sample Methodological issues especially sampling are discussed at length Standard negation the basic structural means languages have for negating declarative verbal main clauses is typologized from a new perspective paying attention to structural differences between affirmatives and negatives In symmetric negation affirmative and negative structures show no differences except for the presence of the negative marker s whereas in asymmetric negation there are further structural differences i e asymmetries A distinction is made between constructional and paradigmatic asymmetry in the former the addition of the negative marker s is accompanied by further structural differences in comparison to the corresponding affirmative and in the latter the correspondences between the members of verbal etc paradigms used in affirmatives and negatives are not one to one Cross cutting the constructional paradigmatic distinction asymmetric negation can be further divided into subtypes according to the nature of the asymmetry Standard negation structures found in the 297 sample languages are exemplified and discussed in detail The frequencies of the different types and some typological correlations are also examined Functional motivations are proposed for the structural types symmetric negatives are language internally analogous to the linguistic structure of the affirmative and asymmetric negatives are language externally analogous to different asymmetries between affirmation and negation on the functional level Relevant diachronic issues are also discussed The book is of interest to language typologists descriptive linguists and to all linguists interested in negation   Locative Predications in Chadic Languages Zygmunt Frajzyngier,2024-10-10 This book demonstrates that the grammatical systems of individual languages encode unique semantic structures Zygmunt Frajzyngier examines these semantic structures with particular reference to how languages convey information about the location of an entity or an event and the movements of an entity in space drawing on data from eight typologically distinct languages that belong to three branches of the Chadic family These languages were chosen because some display locative expressions with semantic and syntactic characteristics that have not been observed or described in other languages most importantly in the coding of what Frajzyngier calls the locative domain in the grammatical system The volume shows that utterances in a given language are determined by the functions encoded in the grammatical system and by where those functions are encoded it further shows that syntactic properties and the existence of some lexical items in the language are also determined by those same functions Coordination Relations in the Languages of Europe and Beyond Caterina Mauri,2008-11-03 This book examines the coding of the three coordination relations of combination contrast and alternative between states of affairs on the basis of a 74 language sample with special focus on the languages spoken in Europe It constitutes the first systematic inquiry so far conducted on the cross linguistic coding of coordination as defined in cognitive and pragmatic terms This research shows that the and but or coding system which is typical of Central Western Europe appears to be extremely rare outside Europe where a great variation in the coding of coordination is attested This cross linguistic variation however is not random but is crucially constrained by the interaction of economic principles with the semantic properties of the individual relations expressed A fine grained functional systematization of coordination is proposed and described by means of implicational patterns and semantic maps This work brings together a broad cross linguistic perspective and a detailed semantic analysis largely based on new and comparable data collected by means of questionnaires all accessible in the appendix of the book It represents the first systematic attempt towards a unified typology of coordination relations A Grammar of Giziga Erin Shay,2021-01-18 This is the first broad detailed grammar of the Giziga language which belongs to the Chadic branch of the Afro Asiatic language family The language is spoken in parts of the Far North Region of the Republic of Cameroon and can be divided into two dialects Giziga and Northern Giziga with about 80 000 native speakers in total This volume describes the Giziga dialect occasionally referring to the Northern variety and aims to provide new information about this and other Afro Asiatic languages for further research in linguistics history anthropology sociology and related fields The book will also be a tool helping Giziga speakers preserve their language history and culture for future generations An Areal Typology of Agreement Systems Ranko Matasović,2018-05-24 Surveying over 300 languages this typological study presents new theoretical insights into the nature of agreement as well as empirical findings about the distribution of agreement patterns in the world s languages Focussing primarily on agreement in gender number and person but with reference to agreement in other smaller categories Ranko Matasovi aims to discover which patterns of agreement are widespread and common in languages and which are rather limited in their distribution He sheds new light on a range of important theoretical questions such as what agreement actually is what areal typological and genetic patterns exist across agreement systems and what problems in the analysis of agreement remain unresolved A Grammar of Miya Russell G. Schuh,1998 A Grammar of Miya describes a language of the Chadic family spoken in Northern Nigeria This is the first documentation of Miya aside from word lists The grammar describes all aspects of the language Of particular typological interest are the tone system a terraced level system in which tone operates over multi syllabic domains and word order which is VXS in many contexts Progressive Traditions in African and Oriental Studies Siegmund Brauner,Ekkehard Wolff,1988-12-31 No detailed description available for Progressive Traditions in African and Oriental Studies Articles in the World's Languages Laura Becker,2021-09-20 This study provides a systematic overview of articles and article systems in the world s languages using a sample of 104 languages Articles can be classified into 10 types according to their referential functions definite anaphoric weak definite recognitional indefinite presentational exclusive specific nonspecific inclusive specific and referential articles All 10 types are described in detail with examples from various languages of the world The book also addresses crosslinguistic trends concerning the distribution and the development of different article types and it proposes a typology of article systems The aim of this study is to provide a general crosslinguistic overview concerning the attested properties and distributions of articles It is geared towards readers with interests in language typology and the nominal domain and it can serve as a point of reference for language specific studies of articles or determiners   Encyclopedia of Language and Linguistics ,2005-11-24 The first edition of ELL 1993 Ron Asher Editor was hailed as the field s standard reference work for a generation Now the all new second edition matches ELL s comprehensiveness and high quality expanded for a new generation while being the first encyclopedia to really exploit the multimedia potential of linguistics The most authoritative up to date comprehensive and international reference source in its field An entirely new work with new editors new authors new topics and newly commissioned articles with a handful of classic articles The first Encyclopedia to exploit the multimedia potential of linguistics through the online edition Ground breaking and International in scope and approach Alphabetically arranged with extensive cross referencing Available in print and online priced separately The online version will include updates as subjects develop ELL2 includes c 7 500 000 words c 11 000 pages c 3 000 articles c 1 500 figures 130 halftones and 150 colour Supplementary audio video and text files online c 3 500 glossary definitions c 39 000 references Extensive list of commonly used abbreviations List of languages of the world including information on no of speakers language family etc Approximately 700 biographical entries now includes contemporary linguists 200 language maps in print and online Also available online via ScienceDirect featuring extensive browsing searching and internal cross referencing between articles in the work plus dynamic linking to journal articles and abstract databases making navigation flexible and easy For more information pricing options and availability visit www info sciencedirect com The first Encyclopedia to exploit the multimedia potential of linguistics Ground breaking in scope wider than any predecessor An invaluable resource for researchers academics students and professionals in the fields of linguistics anthropology education psychology language acquisition language pathology cognitive science sociology the law the media medicine computer science The most authoritative up to date comprehensive and international reference source in its field   Loanwords in the World's Languages Martin Haspelmath,Uri Tadmor,2009 This landmark publication in comparative linguistics is the first comprehensive work to address the general issue of what kinds of words tend to be borrowed from other languages The authors have assembled a unique database of over 70 000 words from 40 languages from around the world 18 000 of which are loanwords This database allows the authors to make empirically founded generalizations about general tendencies of word exchange among languages Book Jacket   Reciprocals and Reflexives Ekkehard König,Volker Gast,2008-11-06 This collection of original papers is a representative survey of recent theoretical and cross linguistic work on reciprocity and reflexivity Its most remarkable feature is its combination of formal approaches case studies on individual languages and broad typological surveys in one volume showing that the interaction of formal approaches to grammar and typology may lead to new insights and results for both fields Among the major issues addressed in this volume are the following How can our current knowledge about the space and limits of variation in the relevant domain be captured in a structural typology of reciprocity What light can such a typology shed on the facts of particular languages or groups of languages e g Austronesian How can recent descriptive and typological insights be incorporated into a revised and more adequate version of the Binding Theory How do verbal semantics argument structure and reciprocal markers interact How can we explain the pervasive patterns of ambiguity observable in these two domains especially the use of the same forms both as reflexive and reciprocal markers What are the major sources in the historical development of reciprocal markers This combination of large scale typological surveys with in depth studies of particular languages provides new answers to old questions and raises important new questions for future research Linguistic Categories, Language Description and Linguistic Typology Luca Alfieri,Giorgio Francesco Arcodia,Paolo Ramat,2021-07-15 Few issues in the history of the language sciences have been an object of as much discussion and controversy as linguistic categories The eleven articles included in this volume tackle the issue of categories from a wide range of perspectives and with different foci in the context of the current debate on the nature and methodology of the research on comparative concepts particularly the relation between the categories needed to describe languages and those needed to compare languages While the first six papers deal with general theoretical questions the following five confront specific issues in the domain of language analysis arising from the application of categories The volume will appeal to a very broad readership advanced students and scholars in any field of linguistics but also specialists in the philosophy of language and scholars interested in the cognitive aspects of language from different subfields neurolinguistics cognitive sciences psycholinguistics anthropology A History of African Linguistics H.
