Havasupai Baskets And Their Makers 1930 194:

Havasupai Baskets and Their Makers, 1930-1940 Barbara McKee, Edwin Dinwiddie McKee, Joyce Herold, 1975 This book describes in detail 184 baskets woven by 32 women members of the Havasupai Indian tribe living in the westernmost reaches of the Grand Canyon During the first half of the twentieth century these women developed the art of basketmaking to a very high degree among the finest made by any of the North American Indians The author and her husband the Park Naturalist at Grand Canyon National Park became acquainted with this isolated tribe and collected these baskets from 1930 1940 when they lived on the south rim of the canyon The McKees asked an anthropologist at the Denver Museum of Natural History to document catalogue and appraise their basket collection in the 1960s One Amazon review states A must have for anyone who collects Native American baskets The photographs are very useful in learning how to identify a Havasupai basket
