Financial Management in the NHS Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Committee of Public Accounts, 2009 This report examines the financial performance of the NHS and NHS Foundation Trusts The Department of Health and the NHS achieved a surplus of 1 674 million in 2007 08 The surplus was significantly higher than the original forecast of 916 million and more than three times that recorded in 2006 07 515 million In 2006 07 the surplus was concentrated in the Strategic Health Authorities which are administrative bodies with the Primary Care Trust and NHS Trust sectors remaining in deficit All sectors are now in surplus and the quality of financial management at individual NHS organisations improved during 2007 08 The surplus represents funding that was made available but which was not used and there is a real risk that patients lose out because the NHS is not spending its allocated funding on treating them The Department has committed itself to making the surplus available to the NHS for spending in future years Some long standing financial problems affect a minority of trusts which remain in deficit and some regional variations in financial performance persist During a period of economic uncertainty when resources are severely stretched it is more important than ever that the NHS can demonstrate value for money and continuous improvements in productivity The Department intends that the NHS should generate 15 billion in efficiency savings over the next three years Going forward the Department and NHS face a number of challenges including changes to the financial reporting framework and timetable and further system reforms under which a quality element will be introduced into how NHS organisations are funded The surplus generated and better financial management should if maintained help deal with the financial implications of meeting these challenges

NHS Deficits Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Health Committee,2006-07-03 NHS Deficits Sixth report of session 2005 06 Vol 2 Written Evidence

Health and the National Health Service John Carrier,Ian

Kendall,2015-09-16 The NHS came into existence in an atmosphere of conflict centred on the strong ideological commitment of the Post war Labour Government and the opposition of the Conservative Party of that time to the idea of a universally available and centrally planned medical care service There was also opposition from some sections of the medical establishment who feared the loss of professional autonomy Setting health policy in both an historical and modern context post 1997 Carrier and Kendall weigh up the successes and failures of the National Health Service and examine the conflicts which have continued for over sixty years in spite of efforts to solve financial problems in the NHS through increases in funding as well as structural and organisational change After looking at recent responses to supposed failures of the NHS they conclude that the NHS has successfully faced the challenges before it and is likely to continue to meet the changing health needs of the population Financial stresses concerns about the quality of care and demographic change with consequent issues for the elderly and the chronically ill continue to be urgent and politically contentious issues This book is appropriate for a wide range of undergraduate and postgraduate students studying health policy and the NHS
