Financial Markets and Policies in East Asia Gordon De Brouwer, 2003-09-02 While the financial crisis in East Asia could be said to be on the wane in some countries the reconstruction process in the aftermath and the debate about the financial policies best suited to the region still rages on This book examines both of these processes in authoritative detail It includes critical assessment of the post crisis state of financial markets the banking and corporate restructuring process with special focus on Indonesia the policy debates currently going on in East Asia including monetary policy exchange rate systems and the scope for financial cooperation East Asia s debt and equity markets The well respected contributors including Claudio Borio Hae Wang Chung Guy Debelle Reuven Glick Robert McCauley and Eisuke Sakakibara have produced a book that will be influential around the world

Institutional Change in Southeast Asia Fredrik Sjöholm, Jose L. Tongzon, 2005 Institutional Change in Southeast Asia examines the institutional changes taking place in and challenges facing the region since 1997 The book focuses on determinants to the adjustments and on implementations of the reforms It also describes various differences in the reform process between countries in the region Southeast Asia s economic development over the last decades has been impressive Most of the region achieved consistently high growth rates accompanied by significant structural transformation and industrialization poverty alleviation and improvements in their overall standard of living as indicated by such social indicators as greater longevity more widespread delivery of basic education and lower infant mortality rates However the crisis that struck Southeast Asia in 1997 had severe economic social and political consequences in the region It also threw into doubt the future economic prosperity of the countries in Southeast Asia and raised intriguing questions about the quality of their institutions and their approach to economic development Sjöholm and Tongzon argue that the economies of Southeast Asia need to reform their institutions if the previous rapid development is to continue The institutional weaknesses have been addressed to different degrees and with different success in the affected countries Against the backdrop of Southeast Asia s importance in the world economy it is hardly possible to overestimate the need to understand this process of change

Currency and Contest in East Asia William M. Grimes, 2011-03-15 Since the Asian Financial Crisis of 1997-98 East Asian economies have sought to make themselves less vulnerable to global financial markets by transforming the regional financial architecture With Japan as a leading actor they have introduced initiatives to provide emergency financing to crisis economies support the development of local currency bond markets and better coordinate currency policies In Currency and Contest in East Asia William W Grimes builds on years of primary research and scores of interviews with participants and policy analysts to provide the most accurate complete and detailed description available of attempts to build financial cooperation among East Asian countries Adapting realist political economy theory to the realities of contemporary global finance Grimes places regional issues firmly in the wider context of great power rivalries He argues that financial regionalism can best be understood as one arena for competition among Japan the United States and China Despite their mutual desire for regional prosperity and economic stability these three powers have conflicting political interests Their struggles for regional leadership raise questions about the long term feasibility of regional financial cooperation the possible effects of Sino Japanese rivalry on regional financial stability and the potential for East Asian financial regionalism to undermine the long established albeit waning global and regional dominance of the United States and the dollar
