Pause,Christoph Schwarze,Arnim von Stechow,Götz Wienold,1995-03-09 This book contains a selection of the papers given at an international conference at the University of Konstanz Germany in 1991 All contributions relate to the assumption that lexical knowledge plays a central role in the organization of language inasmuch as the components or modules of grammar come together and interact in the lexicon Originating in various traditions of linguistic thought however the individual papers reflect differing interests and are based upon different conceptions of the lexicon its status and interfaces There is the position of current generative linguistics which aims at accounting for structural properties of the lexicon within syntactic theory There is also the perspective of model theoretical semantics where borderline phenomena between lexical semantics and the semantics of sentence and text receive particular attention Still another group of papers directly discusses problems of lexical semantics focussing on representational and conceptual aspects of word meanings The notion of a two level semantics as well as cross linguistic analyses are characteristic of these contributions The book closes with a comparative and historical study of lexical evolution

Right Hemisphere Language Comprehension Mark Jung Beeman, Christine Chiarello, 2013-02-01 The statement The Right Hemisphere RH processes language while not exactly revolutionary still provokes vigorous debate It often elicits the argument that anything the RH does with language is not linguistic but paralinguistic The resistance to the notion of RH language processing persists despite the fact that even the earliest observers of Left Hemisphere LH language specialization posited some role for the RH in language processing and evidence attesting to various RH language processes has steadily accrued for more than 30 years In this volume chapters pertain to a wide but by no means exhaustive set of language comprehension processes for which RH contributions have been demonstrated The sections are organized around these processes beginning with initial decoding of written or spoken input proceeding through semantic processing of single words and sentences up to comprehension of more complex discourse as well as problem solving The chapters assembled here should begin to melt this resistance to evidence of RH language processing This volume s main goal is to compile evidence about RH language function from a scattered literature The editorial commentaries concluding each section highlight the relevance of these phenomena for psycholinguistic and neuropsychological theory and discuss similarities and apparent discrepancies in the findings reported in individual chapters In the final chapter common themes that emerge from the enterprise of studying RH language and future challenge for the field are reviewed Although all chapters focus only on typical laterality of right handed people this work provides a representative sample of the current state of the art in RH language research Important features include a wide range of coverage from speech perception and reading through complex discourse comprehension and problem solving research presented from both empirical and theoretical perspectives and commentaries and conclusions integrating findings and theories across sub domains and speculating on future directions of the field

Language-Based Approaches to Support Reading Comprehension Francine Falk-Ross, 2014-07-09 Language Based Approaches to Support Reading Comprehension takes a closer look at students who are frequently marginalized by language differences in the classroom whether by teachers oversight or simply the lack of information In order to remedy this situation Falk Ross and the contributing authors offer their different perspectives on supporting English language learners ELLs through specific strategies for assessment and instruction Each chapter presents a specific issue and challenge supportive research and up to date information classroom implications and strategies and case study applications relating to the particular perspective of literacy development for ELLs of middle level ages

Basic Functions of Language, Reading and Reading Disability Evelin Witruk, Angela D.
