

STAGE 5: THE PRODUCTION OF A FINAL ARGUMENT

Each student makes sense of their experiences by producing a final argument

- State the question and claim you are trying to support
- Include evidence (data + analysis + interpretation)
- Provide a justification of your evidence
- Organize your argument in a way that enhances readability
- Correct grammar, punctuation, and spelling errors

Our Claim We claim the role of survival increases when the turbidity and predators decrease.
Our evidence We noticed ^{fish} the turbidity was 21.90 → 4.25, then we was only 5 bright males. When turbidity was 10 → 4.25, there were 100 bright males.	(reasoning) Our justification (of evidence) Since 100 > 5, more ^{fish} were able to survive in the less turbid water. The predators might be able to see the bright males better than the dark in the turbid water.
