Fisher, 2025-04-24 Emotional Harmony is about learning how to choose one's attitude, not simply as a conscious behavioral choice but as a hardwired neurological response to any given set of circumstances. Life is messy and many people, particularly those with addiction and codependency problems, were never given the tools to negotiate that messiness. Since Kent Fisher and Michelle Rappaport opened their therapeutic practice almost twenty years ago, they have seen thousands of people who have spent their whole lives emotionally deregulated, responding to life with either aggression or passivity. Their job is to teach these people how to live within the emotional regulated space of choice and repair. Drawing on their private practice reconstruction experiences and the research of Patrick Carnes, Dan Siegel, Sharon Stanley, and others, Kent and Michelle have developed a process of repair and renegotiation of the past and a harmonious way to respond to the present. With the SomEx model, change happens through 5 simple actions that evolve through the therapeutic relationship. For therapist and client alike Emotional Harmony is the first book to merge the science of somatic therapies with the real world applications of experiential healing By integrating the left brain s meaning making and rationalization of our life experience with the right hemisphere s somatic processing of trauma and its consequences we move from that messy life story into the deep repair that is emotional harmony The Colorado School Journal ,1912 Remaking English Society Alexandra Shepard,Steve Hindle,John Walter,2015 Written by leading authorities the volume can be considered a standard work on seventeenth century English social history A tribute to the work of Keith Wrightson Remaking English Society re examines the relationship between enduring structures and social change in early modern England Collectively the essays in the volume reconstruct the fissures and connections that developed both within and between social groups during the sixteenth seventeenth and eighteenth centuries Focusing on the experience of rapid economic and demographic growth and on related processes of cultural diversification the contributors address fundamental questions about the character of English society during a period of decisive change Prefaced by a substantial introduction which traces the evolution of early modern social history over the last fifty years these essays each of them written by a leading authority not only offer state of the art assessments of the historiography but also represent the latest research on a variety of topics that have been at the heart of the development of the new social history and its cultural turn gender relations and sexuality governance and litigation class and deference labouring relations neighbourliness and reciprocity and social status and consumption STEVE HINDLE is W M Keck Foundation Director of Research at the Huntington Library San Marino California ALEXANDRA SHEPARD is Reader in History University of Glasgow JOHN WALTER is Professor of History University of Essex Contributors Helen Berry Adam Fox H R French Malcolm Gaskill Paul Griffiths Steve Hindle Craig Muldrew Lindsay O Neill Alexandra Shepard Tim Stretton Naomi Tadmor John Walter Phil Withington Andy Wood Learning a Trade Reynolds Price,1998 This journal offers a rich reward for those seeking to enter the guild of writers as well as those intrigued by the process of the literary life Price is the award winning author of 30 books and is a regular broadcast commentator for NPR s All Things Considered Utopian Generations Nicholas Brown,2009-01-10 Utopian Generations develops a powerful interpretive matrix for understanding world literature one that renders modernism and postcolonial African literature comprehensible in a single framework within which neither will ever look the same African literature has commonly been seen as representationally na ve vis vis modernism and canonical modernism as reactionary vis vis postcolonial literature What brings these two bodies of work together argues Nicholas Brown is their disposition toward Utopia or the horizon of a radical reconfiguration of social relations Grounded in a profound rethinking of the Hegelian Marxist tradition this fluently written book takes as its point of departure the partial displacement during the twentieth century of capitalism s internal limit classically conceived as the conflict between labor and capital onto a geographic division of labor and wealth Dispensing with whole genres of commonplace contemporary pieties Brown examines works from both sides of this division to create a dialectical mapping of

Pan-Africanism from Within Ras Makonnen, 2017-08-12 A Guyanese by birth and a Kenyan by citizenship Ras Makonnen would still regard these two aspects of his life as accidents of history his roots and destiny are in the continent of Africa For the last half of the twentieth century he has striven along with the other major architects of pan Africanism to reconcile the forces that still divide the continent This volume is a further contribution to that struggle Makonnen's analysis of the pan African movement starts in the former British Guiana Guyana in the early twenties warms up to the North American scene where as a young man he got increasingly more aware of the African and diasporic African person's position in world history He then describes his days in London and Manchester from the mid thirties to the fifties Accra Ghana until the fall of Kwame Nkrumah in 1966 and thereafter Nairobi Kenya where he worked and made his transition Although the narrative is peppered with the most delightful character sketches of early African and other Black leaders the author's main concern is to interpret the quality of life amongst Black people at home and abroad He does so by employing a wide historical perspective and by infusing into his study of particular pan African actors his knowledge of the intellectual and political climate at large He produces in the process a vivid participator s commentary on whole areas that have been quite neglected in conventional studies of pan Africanism Black intergroup relations in North America and the African diaspora in the Caribbean race relations in Britain Black intellectuals and the white Left Black expatriates and African socialism these are just a few of the themes examined against a background of individual famous personalities as well as others not documented before With an autobiographical thread that runs throughout Makonnens s narrative is a uniquely diversified pan African portrait

George Gershwin Walter Rimler, 2011-02-16 George Gershwin lived with purpose and gusto but with melancholy as well for he was unable to make a place for himself no family of his own and no real home in music He and his siblings received little love from their mother and no direction from their father Older brother and lyricist Ira managed to create a home when he married Leonore Strunsky a hard edged woman who lived for wealth and status The closest George came to domesticity was through his longtime relationship with Kay Swift She was his lover musical confidante and fellow composer But she remained married to another man while he went endlessly from woman to woman Only in the final hours of his life when they were separated by a continent did he realize how much he needed her Fatally ill unprotected by and perhaps estranged from Ira he was exiled by Leonore from the house she and the brothers shared and he died horribly and alone at the age of thirty eight Nor was Gershwin able to find a satisfying musical harbor For years his songwriting genius could be expressed only in the ephemeral world of show business as his brilliance as a composer of large scale works went unrecognized by highbrow music critics When he resolved this quandary with his opera Porgy and Bess the critics were unable to understand or validate it Decades would pass before this his most ambitious composition was universally regarded as one of music s lasting treasures and before his stature as a great composer became secure In George Gershwin An Intimate Portrait Walter Rimler makes use of fresh sources including newly discovered letters by Kay Swift as well as correspondence between and interviews with intimates of Ira and Leonore Gershwin It is written with spirited prose and contains more than two dozen photographs Motor Age ,1905 MotorBoating ,1952-11
