Approaches to Archaeological Ceramics Carla M. Sinopoli, 1991-06-30 More than any other category of evidence ceramics offers archaeologists their most abundant and potentially enlightening source of information on the past Being made primarily of clay a relatively inexpensive material that is available in every region ceramics became essential in virtually every society in the world during the past ten thousand years The straightforward technology of preparing forming and firing clay into hard durable shapes has meant that societies at various levels of complexity have come to rely on it for a wide variety of tasks Ceramic vessels quickly became essential for many household and productive tasks Food preparation cooking and storage the very basis of settled village life could not exist as we know them without the use of ceramic vessels Often these vessels broke into pieces but the virtually indestructible quality of the ceramic material itself meant that these pieces would be preserved for centuries waiting to be recovered by modern archaeologists The ability to create ceramic material with diverse physical properties to form vessels into so many different shapes and to decorate them in limitless manners led to their use in far more than utilitarian contexts Some vessels were especially made to be used in trade manufacturing activities or rituals while ceramic material was also used to make other items such as figurines models and architectural ornaments

Dynamics of Production in the Ancient Near East Juan Carlos Moreno Garcia, 2016-10-11 The transition between the 2nd and the 1st millennium BC was an era of deep economic changes in the ancient Near East An increasing monetization of transactions a broader use of silver the management of the resources of temples through entrepreneurs the development of new trade circuits and an expanding private small scale economy transformed the role previously played by institutions such as temples and royal palaces The 17 essays collected here analyze the economic transformations which affected the old dominant powers of the Late Bronze Age their adaptation to a new economic environment the emergence of new economic actors and the impact of these changes on very different social sectors and geographic areas from small communities in the oases of the Egyptian Western Desert to densely populated urban areas in Mesopotamia Egypt was not an exception Traditionally considered as a conservative and highly hierarchical and bureaucratic society Egypt shared nevertheless many of these characteristics and tried to adapt its economic organization to the challenges of a new era In the end the emergence of imperial super powers Assyria Babylonia Persia and to a lesser extent Kushite and Saite Egypt can be interpreted as the answer of former palatial organizations to the economic and geopolitical conditions of the early Iron Age A new order where competition for the control of flows of wealth and of strategic trading areas appears crucial

History of civilizations of Central Asia Adle, Chahryar, UNESCO, 2005-10-03 This major six volume project co published with Macmillan covers the historical experience of the peoples and societies of the Caribbean region from the earliest times to the present day The sixth volume brings this series to an end as it takes in the whole of the modern period from colonial conquest and domination to decolonization the Cold War from start to finish the disintegration of the Soviet Union and the renewed instability in certain areas Not only did the colonial regimes lay a new patina over the region but nationalism remoulded all old identities into a series of new ones That process of the twentieth century was perhaps the most transformative of all after the colonial subjugation of the nineteenth While it has been the basis of remarkable stability in vast stretches of the region it has been a fertile source of tension and even wars in other parts The impact and the results of such changes have been astonishingly variable despite the proximity of these states to each other and their being subject to or driven by virtually the same compulsions

The Archaeology of Volga Bulgaria in the 10th to Early 13th Centuries Konstantin A. Rudenko, 2024-11-18 This book focuses on Volga Bulgaria 10th to early 13th centuries the only Muslim state in Eastern Europe before 1300 For several centuries it operated as a bridge between the Christian West and the Muslim East As such it is widely believed that the colossal transit of oriental silver coin through the state was the foundation of the Bulgar economy while Islam consolidated statehood in the Middle Volga region Drawing on the rich archaeological record Konstantin Rudenko argues against this view demonstrating that the Bulgar culture was instead formed on the basis of its own resources The Bulgars thus represent a unique example of relatively rapid change from nomadism to sedentism and urbanization with no significant influence from neighboring developed states Cultural syncretism therefore emerged as a key characteristic of Volga Bulgaria
