Teaching Machines Audrey Watters, 2023-02-07 How ed tech was born Twentieth century teaching machines from Sidney Pressey's mechanized test giver to B F Skinner's behaviorist bell ringing box Contrary to popular belief ed tech did not begin with videos on the internet The idea of technology that would allow students to go at their own pace did not originate in Silicon Valley In Teaching Machines education writer Audrey Watters offers a lively history of predigital educational technology from Sidney Pressey's mechanized positive reinforcement provider to B F Skinner's behaviorist bell ringing box Watters shows that these machines and the pedagogy that accompanied them sprang from ideas bite sized content individualized instruction that had legs and were later picked up by textbook publishers and early advocates for computerized learning Watters pays particular attention to the role of the media newspapers magazines television and film in shaping people's perceptions of teaching machines as well as the psychological theories underpinning them She considers these machines in the context of education reform the political reverberations of Sputnik and the rise of the testing and textbook industries She chronicles Skinner's attempts to bring his teaching machines to market culminating in the famous behaviorist's efforts to launch Didak 101 the pre verbal machine that taught spelling Alternate names proposed by Skinner include Autodidak Instructomat and Autostructor Telling these somewhat cautionary tales Watters challenges what she calls the teleology of ed tech the idea that not only is computerized education inevitable but technological progress is the sole driver of events OE [publication] ,1968 Algorithmization in Learning and Instruction Lev Nakhmanovich

Gibbons,Elizabeth Boling,2021-09-30 This book examines the theoretical basis of one of the functional layers the message layer of an architectural theory of instructional design The architectural theory Gibbons 2003 Gibbons Gibbons 2014 identifies seven functions carried out during instruction that correspond with designable strata or layers The architectural theory proposes that for each layer there exists a specialized body of design languages constructs questions tools practices processes a professional community and most especially bodies of design theory It also proposes that design knowledge from other design fields many of which approach design from the same functional perspective can be appropriated for the further development of knowledge within the instructional technology field A robust literature from disparate fields supplies relevant theory for message layer design This book builds the case for validation of the message layer by bringing together work from instructional theory conversation theory research in the learning sciences intelligent tutoring system research and K 12 education Within this literature the authors demonstrate the existence of the message as a structural abstraction an independently designable entity They trace the development of the message construct historically showing that it has remained remarkably stable over time independent of changing psychological educational and technological conventions

Chang,H.F.M Crombag,K.D.J.M. van der Drift,J.F. Moonen,2012-12-06 History The present book is a translation and in part an adaptation of a study the authors conducted for the Dutch Ministry of Education Several years ago the Dutch authorities decided to found an Open University a system of distance learning especially suited to students only able or willing to devote part of their time to their studies and moreover not generally capable of studying at fixed times or places A preparatory committee was created which published a preliminary report in 1 1978 This report was largely concerned with the kinds of courses the Open University should offer and the kinds of students it planned to enroll The report also discussed possible teaching methods or media of the Open University The predominant conclusion was that written instruction should constitute the basic teaching medium and that other media e g computerized instruction or televi sion were only to be added if the written medium failed to realize the desired teaching objectives This preference was mainly based on considerations of cost since the committee expected written instruction to be the cheapest alternative possible Whether this is in fact true will be discussed later in this book We were then asked to reconsider the different possibilities of teaching methods and media in more detail in terms of their differential teaching effects costs of application and the committee s preference for the print medium Work was started on this assignment in 1978 and completed a year later
