Shafer, 2008-08-15 Summarizing data derived from a study of the implementation of one standards based middle school curriculum program Mathematics in Context this book demonstrates the challenges of conducting comparative longitudinal research in the reality of school life The Cambridge Handbook of Multimedia Learning Richard E. Mayer, Logan Fiorella, 2021-12-09 Digital and online learning is more prevalent than ever making multimedia learning a primary objective for many instructors The Cambridge Handbook of Multimedia Learning examines cutting edge research to guide creative teaching methods in online classrooms and training Recognized as the field's major reference work this research based handbook helps define and shape this area of study This third edition provides the latest progress report from the world's leading multimedia researchers with forty six chapters on how to help people learn from words and pictures particularly in computer based environments The chapters demonstrate what works best and establishes optimized practices It systematically examines well researched principles of effective multimedia instruction and pinpoints exactly why certain practices succeed by isolating the boundary conditions The volume is founded upon research findings in learning theory giving it an informed perspective in explaining precisely how effective teaching practices achieve their goals or fail to engage "Growing Up" Teaching Frances Schoonmaker, 2002-09-23 Focusing on personal knowledge and how it influences teacher development this book follows one teacher Kay from her years of teacher preparation through her time as a seasoned veteran What emerges from this intense 10 year study is a more complete picture of teacher development that will help us to better prepare and support our pre and in service teachers This book offers a holistic view of learning to teach that challenges traditional boundaries and provides insight into many important issues such as the link between theory and practice teacher retention and how to get teachers to change timeworn pedagogical practices Bringing Children Back into the Family Sam Frankel, Sally McNamee, 2020-09-25 Theorists in the UK have offered a new perspective through which to understand the interrelationship of the individual within the structure of the family This volume's desire is to re-apply such thinking in the context of children's lives in the family Early Childhood Systems Sharon Lynn Kagan, Kristie Kauerz, 2012-03-16 In this seminal volume leading authorities strategize about how to create early childhood systems that transcend politics and economics to serve the needs of all young children The authors offer different interpretations of the nature of early childhood systems discuss the elements necessary to support their development and examine how effectiveness can be assessed With a combination of cutting edge scholarship and practical examples of systems building efforts taking place in the field this book provides the foundation educators and policymakers need to take important steps toward developing more conceptually integrated approaches to early childhood care education and comprehensive services

Contemporary Pioneers in Human Learning and Development Héfer Bembenuatty, 2022-03-01 This volume traces the socialization process professional development career paths and theory and research of contemporary pioneers in education and psychology This volume contains interviews with leading scholars who are at the vanguard of teaching and learning They shared how their childhood development influenced their theoretical paths and research endeavors and revealed their thoughts beliefs and experiences that made them who they are today These scholars responded to questions pertaining to their childhood initial interest in education and psychology role models research interests and major findings future directions of their research educational implications derived from their research and perception of their legacy They are real people who have had experiences like anybody else but found homes and teachers who supported them While in college they found educators who mentored them Readers will find that this volume offers them an opportunity to learn the background of contemporary pioneers in education and psychology provides valuable sources where they can learn about how major theories developed and where they are moving and reveals the personal anecdotes that influenced the conceptualization of contemporary theories and research Educators and students will find that this book provides hope and a rejuvenated enthusiasm about the status of education and psychology and that they too can be leaders in their own ways

Teaching History for the Common Good Keith C. Barton, Linda S. Levstik, 2004-07-13 In Teaching History for the Common Good Barton and Levstik present a clear overview of competing ideas among educators historians politicians and the public about the nature and purpose of teaching history and they evaluate these debates in light of current research on students historical thinking In many cases disagreements about what should be taught to the nation's children and how it should be presented reflect fundamental differences that will not easily be resolved A central premise of this book though is that systematic theory and research can play an important role in such debates by providing evidence of how students think how their ideas interact with the information they encounter both in school and out and how these ideas differ across contexts Such evidence is needed as an alternative to the untested assumptions that plague so many discussions of history education The authors review research on students historical thinking and set it in the theoretical context of mediated action an approach that calls attention to the concrete actions that people undertake the human agents responsible for such actions the cultural tools that aid and constrain them their purposes and their social contexts They explain how this theory allows educators to address the breadth of practices settings purposes and tools that influence students developing understanding of the past as well as how it provides an alternative to the academic discipline of history as a way of making decisions about teaching and learning the subject in schools Beyond simply describing the factors that influence students thinking Barton and Levstik evaluate their implications for historical understanding and civic engagement They base these evaluations not on the disciplinary study of history but on the purpose of social education preparing students for participation in a pluralist democracy Their ultimate concern is how history can help citizens engage in collaboration toward the common good In Teaching History for the Common Good Barton and Levstik discuss the contribution of theory and research explain the theory of mediated action and how it guides their analysis and describe research on children s and adults knowledge of and interest in history lay out a vision of pluralist participatory democracy and its relationship to the humanistic study of history as a basis for evaluating the perspectives on the past that influence students learning explore four principal stances toward history identification analysis moral response and exhibition review research on the extent to which children and adolescents understand and accept each of these and examine how the stances might contribute to or detract from participation in a pluralist democracy address six of the principal tools of history narrative structure stories of individual achievement and motivation national narratives inquiry empathy as perspective taking and empathy as caring and review research and conventional wisdom on teachers knowledge and practice and argue that for teachers to embrace investigative multi perspectival approaches to history they need more than knowledge of content and pedagogy they need a guiding purpose that can be fulfilled only by these approaches and preparation for participatory democracy provides such purpose Teaching History for the Common Good is essential reading for history and social studies professionals researchers teacher educators and students as well as for policymakers parents and members of the general public who are interested in history education or in students thinking and learning about the subject
