Drawing on a series of interviews with musicians aged between fifteen and fifty Lucy Green explores the nature of pop musicians informal learning practices attitudes and values the extent to which these altered over the last forty years and the experiences of the musicians in formal music education Through a comparison of the characteristics of informal pop music learning with those of more formal music education the book offers insights into how we might re invigorate the musical involvement of the population Could the creation of a teaching culture that recognizes and rewards aural imitation improvisation and experimentation as well as commitment and passion encourage more people to make music Since the hardback publication of this book in 2001 the author has explored many of its themes through practical work in school classrooms Her follow up book Music Informal Learning and the School A New Classroom Pedagogy 2008 appears in the same Ashgate series

Faith-Based Education That Constructs HeeKap Lee, 2010-08-09 Constructivism is everywhere It is a hot issue at this time in the field of philosophy education technology and religion However can constructivism be an alternative approach in faith based education While some conclude that Jesus knew learning was an active knowledge creating process and that he always encouraged his disciples to think deeply and go beyond the surface level others would find that constructivism undercuts faith based education because of its claims to relativity For example constructivists claim that meaning is imposed on the world by us rather than existing in the world independently from us Thus they proclaim that truth is relative to particular times places and people Christians hold that truth does exist absolutely So how can there be a way forward for faith based educators who see the good in the constructivist approach In Faith Based Education that Constructs readers will find a unique approach whereby constructivism may appropriately be applied to a faith based education setting Although disagreement can occur between constructivism and faith based education this book concludes that constructivist thought and Christian faith based education are in the end congruent and harmonious in significant ways Those faith based educators who continue to hold cautionary views of radical constructivist assertions against absolute truths need not disregard all other aspects of constructivism
