Guillaume Chequespierre And The Oise Salon An Anthology:

Guillaume Chequespierre and the Oise Salon John Hulme,1986 Gathers nonsense poems written in French which when read aloud sound like English poems by Shakespeare Wordsworth Keats Blake Browning and Coleridge Translating the Perception of Text Clive Scott,2017-07-05 Translation often proceeds as if languages already existed as if the task of the translator were to make an appropriate selection from available resources Clive Scott challenges this tacit assumption If the translator is to do justice to himself herself as a reader if the translator is to become the creative writer of his her reading then the language of translation must be equal to the translators perceptual experience of and bodily responses to source texts Each renewal of perceptual and physiological contact with a text involves a renewal of the ways we think language and use our expressive faculties listening speaking writing Phenomenology and particularly the phenomenology of Merleau Ponty underpins this new approach to translation The task of the translator is tirelessly to develop new translational languages ever to move beyond the bilingual into the multilingual and always to remember that language is as much an active instrument of perception as an object of perception Clive Scott is Professor Emeritus of European Literature at the University of East Anglia and a Fellow of the British Academy Annual Report King's College (University of Cambridge),1983 The British Library General Catalogue of Printed Books, 1986 to 1987 British Library,1988 The British National Bibliography Arthur James Wells,1968 Books in Print Supplement ,1994
