The Canadian War on Queers Gary Kinsman, Patrizia Gentile, 2010-03-01 From the 1950s to the late 1990s agents of the state spied on interrogated and harassed gays and lesbians in Canada employing social ideologies and other practices to construct their targets as threats to society and enemies of the state In this path breaking book Gary Kinsman and Patrizia Gentile use official security documents and interviews with gays lesbians civil servants and high ranking officials to disclose not only the acts of state repression that accompanied the Canadian war on queers but also forms of resistance that raised questions about just whose national security was being protected and about national security as an ideological practice This passionate personalized account of how the state used the ideology of national security to wage war on its own people offers ways of understanding and resisting contemporary conflicts such as the so called war on terror

The Iraqi Predicament Tareq Y. Ismael, Jacqueline S. Ismael, 2004-03-20 On February 15 2003 over 6 million people around the world marched in protest against a threatened war on Iraq In the light of these remarkable events and the conflict that followed it is now more important than ever to properly assess Iraq s role in world politics This book provides a history of Iraq an assessment of its position in the broader political landscape and a moving account of the day to day reality experienced by the Iraqi people The authors look at Iraq s and Saddam Hussein s relations and influence in the region of the greater Middle East They examine the role of the UN sanctions and warfare explaining the impact this has had on Iraq s civil population and related humanitarian questions They assess American policy towards Iraq and how this has changed since September 11 setting it within the broader context of America s involvement in the Middle East Finally they look at social policy within Iraq explaining how the internal welfare system has collapsed since the Gulf War and examining the continuing effects of depleted uranium

Multicultiphobia Phil Ryan, 2010-04-24 Official multiculturalism established as Canadian government policy in 1971 has drawn criticism from many scholars and journalists who view it as a potential threat to a strong unified Canadian society In this timely and original book Phil Ryan examines the emergence and influence of these criticisms which continue to provoke an anxiety he calls multicultiphobia Although Ryan argues that multicultiphobic discourse is often marred by important errors of fact and interpretation a systematic inspection of news coverage and parliamentary debates reveals the persistent influence of these critiques and their underlying concerns Rather than simply dismissing multicultiphobia Ryan acknowledges that critics of multiculturalism have identified issues about which Canadians need to talk Does multiculturalism discourage adaptation and encourage cultural walls between Canadians Does it promote an anything goes relativism Finally what do we both as supporters and critics of multiculturalism wish to make of Canada s ethnic diversity Multicultiphobia perceptively tackles all of these questions by means of a sophisticated analysis that encourages a deeper understanding of the issues at the heart of multiculturalism      Fundamentalism and Women in World Religions Arvind Sharma, Katherine K. Young, 2008-09-01 This collection of essays by internationally renowned women scholars both contests the notion of fundamentalism and attempts to find places where it might converge with women's roles in the various world's religions. The essayists explore fundamentalism as a system or method of limiting women's religious roles and examine the ways that women embrace certain aspects of fundamentalism. The essays cover Hinduism, Buddhism, Confucianism, Islam, Judaism, and Christianity. The contributors investigate the ways that women fight back against fundamentalist conceptions of family, gender, roles, doctrinal practices, ritual practices, and God or theistic constructs. The writers reassert and preserve their identities by challenging the static categories of fundamentalism. The essays contain deep and powerful explorations of the intersections of culture, religion, and feminism.

The Muslim Veil in North America Sajida Sultana Alvi, Homa Hoodfar, Sheila McDonough, 2003-02-06 The issue of veiling has been remarkably under researched and over ideologized. In recent years the adoption of the veil has come to symbolize a brave expression of choice, women reaching out to tradition but hoping it will not jeopardize their place in the larger North American society. It is with this in mind that the Canadian Council of Muslim Women (CCMW) invited scholars in the fields of anthropology, history, sociology, and Islamic studies to carry out a systematic study of issues surrounding different practices of the hijab among Muslim communities. This book is the result of that study.

Beyond Accommodation Jennifer Selby, Amelie Barras, Lori G. Beaman, 2018-09-01 Problems of integration, failed political participation, and requests for various kinds of accommodation seem to dominate the research on minority Muslims in Western nations. Beyond Accommodation offers a different perspective showing how Muslim Canadians successfully navigate and negotiate their religiosity in the more mundane moments of their lives. Drawing on interviews with Muslims in Montreal and St. John's, Selby, Barras, and Beaman examine moments in which religiosity is worked out. They critique the model of reasonable accommodation which has been lauded internationally for acknowledging and accommodating religious and cultural differences. The authors suggest that it disempowers religious minorities by implicitly privileging Christianity and by placing the onus on minorities to make requests for accommodation. The interviewees show that informal negotiation occurs all the time; scholars, however, have not been paying attention. This book advances a new model for studying the navigation and negotiation of religion in the public sphere and presents an alternative picture of how religious difference is woven into the fabric of Canadian society.

Casting Out Sherene Razack, 2008-01-01 Three stereotypical figures have come to represent the war on terror: the dangerous Muslim man, the imperilled Muslim woman, and the civilized European. Casting Out explores the use of these characterizations in the creation of the myth of the family of democratic Western nations obliged to use political, military, and legal force to defend itself against a menacing third world population. It argues that this myth is promoted to justify the expulsion of Muslims from the political community, a process that takes the form of stigmatization, surveillance, incarceration, torture, and bombing. In this timely and controversial work Sherene H Razack looks at contemporary legal and social responses to Muslims in the West and places them in historical context. She explains how race thinking a structure of thought that divides up the world between the deserving and undeserving according to racial descent accustoms us to the idea that the suspension of rights for racialized groups is warranted in the interests of national security. She discusses many examples of the institution and implementation of exclusionary and coercive practices including the mistreatment of security detainees, the regulation of Muslim populations in the name of protecting Muslim women and prisoner abuse at Abu Ghraib. She explores how the denial of a common bond between European people and those of different origins has given rise to the proliferation of literal and figurative camps, places or bodies where liberties are suspended and the rule of law does not apply. Combining rich theoretical perspectives and extensive research, Casting Out makes a major contribution to contemporary debates on race and the war on terror and their implications in areas such as law, politics, cultural studies, feminist and gender studies, and race relations.

Borderlands, 2021-11-08. Boundaries, borderlines, limits on the one hand and rites of passage, contact zones in between spaces on the other have attracted renewed interest in a broad variety of cultural discourses after a long period of decenterings and delimitations in numerous fields of social, psychological and intellectual life. Anthropological dimensions of the subject and its multifarious ways of world making represent the central challenge among the concerns of the humanities. The role of literature and the arts in the formation of cultural and personal identities, theoretical and political approaches to the relation between self and other, the familiar and the foreign have become key issues in literary and cultural studies. Forms of expressivity and expression and question of mediation as well as new enquiries into ethics have characterized the intellectual energies of the past decade. The aim of Borderlands is to represent a variety of approaches to questions of border crossing and boundary transgression, approaches from different angles and different disciplines but all converging in their own way on the post colonial paradigm. Topics discussed include globalization, cartography and ontology, transitional identity, ecocritical sensibility, questions of the application of post coloniality, gender and sexuality and attitudes towards space and place. As well as studies of the cinema of the settler colonies, the films of Neil Jordan and Othering in Canadian sports journalism, there are treatments of the Nigerian novel, South African prison memoirs and African women's writing. Authors examined include Elizabeth Bowen, Bruce Chatwin, Mohamed Choukri, Nuruddin Farah, Jamaica Kincaid, Pauline Melville.
