Uncle Sam and Us Stephen Clarkson, 2002-09-28 Between them Brian Mulroney and Jean Chrétien radically altered the structure and functions of the federal government first by signing and implementing major trade liberalization projects and then by cutting back the size of their governments budgets and the scope of their policies Uncle Sam and Us analyzes the Mulroney Chrétien era's impact on Canadian governance through two related factors globalization from without and neoconservatism from within Stephen Clarkson begins his study by conceptualizing the present Canadian state as a five tiered nested system stretching from the municipal and provincial levels through the federal government and on to the new continental and global spheres of governance in effect he argues the North American Free Trade Agreement and the World Trade Organization have added a supraconstitution to Canada's existing institutions His analysis concerns the changes that have occurred not just in the federal government but in provincial and municipal governance as well The impact of globalization and neoconservatism is examined extensively in the second part of Clarkson's study which examines how the functions of the Canadian state have altered. Clarkson addresses the changes in a number of policy areas such as macro and monetary policy, regulatory, industrial and trade policy as well as social, labour, environmental, cultural and foreign policy. In linking external forces and internal factors in his analysis, Clarkson brings together separate aspects of the Canadian state into a comprehensive understanding of the current Canadian political climate. He combines a global knowledge of the international political economy with a micro concern for detailed analyses of policy issues and concludes that the responsibility for Canada's predicament lies less with external forces than with Canadians and the governments they elected. He ends with a hopeful look into the future pointing towards a realization of the shortcomings of neoconservative globalization and the expectation of a new governing paradigm. Multinational Enterprises and the Law Peter Muchlinski, 2007 Multinational Enterprises and the Law presents the only comprehensive contemporary and interdisciplinary account of the various techniques used to regulate multinational enterprises (MNEs) at the national, regional and multilateral levels. In addition, it considers the effects of corporate self-regulation upon the development of the legal order in this area. Split into four parts, the book firstly deals with the conceptual basis for MNE regulation, explaining the growth of MNEs, their business and legal forms, the relationship between them and the effects of a globalising economy and society upon the evolution of regulatory agendas in the field. Part II covers the main areas of economic regulation, including the limits of national and regional jurisdiction over MNE activities, controls and liberalization of entry and establishment, tax and company and competition law. Part III introduces the social dimension of MNE regulation, covering labour rights, human rights and environmental issues, and Part IV deals with the contribution of international law and organizations to MNE regulation and to the control of investment risks, covering the main provisions found in international investment agreements and their recent interpretation by international tribunals.
