Guinea Pigs Food Symbol And Conflict Of Knowledge In Ecuador:

Guinea Pigs Eduardo P. Archetti, 2020-08-20 Guinea pigs have been reared and eaten by indigenous people in the Andes since ancient times and it seemed rational to development planners to modernize their production. When these development projects ran into trouble, a team of anthropologists was invited to study the reasons for this lack of success. This intriguing book is the product of that study. What the author shows is that guinea pigs have a meaning in the social and ritual life of Ecuadorian peasants which is far from mundane. Rejecting the attempts of some anthropologists to reduce the production of guinea pigs and the festive life of the Andean community to a quest for protein, he explores the full complex of social and cultural practices which centre on this animal and uses his study of its role within Andean culture to provide telling insights into how that culture itself is constituted, its values, beliefs, and attitudes. By working in a variety of communities with different ecological and ethnographic characteristics, the author has made a major contribution to ethnographic accounts of Ecuador and to the more general study of ritual consumption and indigenous knowledge. He points us in particular towards the importance of the knowledge of women who are those principally responsible for the care of an animal which is prized for its role in healing and central to Andean sociality. The book not only presents us with a colourful description of the range of cultural practices surrounding the guinea pig, ranging from the way the animals are reared through a rich and complex cuisine to their role in ritual life, but also highlights the way the gender dimension is central to understanding resistances to modernization and the power of experts.

Celebration Mark

McWilliams,2012-07-01 Essays on Food and Celebration from the 2011 Oxford Symposium on Food and Cookery The 2011 meeting marked the thirtieth year of the Symposium Animals and Science Maggie Bolton,Cathrine Degnen,2020-05-15 What exactly does a focus on animals bring to anthropological studies of science This is a question that the various contributors to this edited collection set out to answer This range of studies explores the intersections between animals and science across different ethnographic settings and in different historical periods The contributions to this volume look at what it means to be human the place of human beings vis vis other species on this planet our ideas of what nature and culture are the limits to our ideas of kinship the ethical debates that surround science together with their interpretation by both scientific communities and the lay public and the moral comportment of scientists Through focusing on science our contributors not only demonstrate that people elsewhere have different relationships with and knowledge of beasts and that different possibilities of relating to animals exist within our own Western worldview but further suggest that our Western knowledge about animals and their positions in society arrived at through Western science and the social sciences is itself in need of rethinking to incorporate other ways of knowing This volume contends that accounts in which animals meet science provide important theoretical insights for anthropologists and can set new agendas for theory in anthropology and science studies Mobility, Markets and Indigenous Socialities Cecilie Vindal Ødegaard,2016-04-15 Exploring how people from Andean communities seek progress and social mobility by moving to the cities Cecilie degaard demonstrates the changing significance of kinship reciprocity and ritual in an urban context Through a focus on people s involvement in land occupations and local associations labour and trade degaard examines the dialectics between popular practices and neoliberal state policies in processes of urbanization The making and un making of notions of the Indigenous communal work and gender is central in this analysis and is discussed against the historical backdrop of the land occupations in Peruvian cities since the 1930s Through its close ethnographic description of everyday life in a new urban neighbourhood this book reveals how social and spatial categories and boundaries are continually negotiated in people s quest for mobility and progress Cecilie degaard argues that conventional meanings of prosperity and progress are significantly altered in interaction with Andean understandings of reciprocity By combining a unique ethnographic account with original theoretical arguments the book provides new insight into the cultural cosmological and political dimensions of mobility progress and market participation Undoing Multiculturalism Carmen Martínez Novo,2021-05-04 President Rafael Correa 2007 2017 led the Ecuadoran Citizens Revolution that claimed to challenge the tenets of neoliberalism and the legacies of colonialism The Correa administration promised to advance Indigenous and Afro descendant rights and redistribute resources to the most vulnerable In many cases these promises proved to be hollow Using two decades of ethnographic research Undoing Multiculturalism examines why these intentions did not become a reality and how the Correa administration undermined the progress of Indigenous people A main complication was pursuing independence from multilateral organizations in the context of skyrocketing commodity prices which caused a new reliance on natural resource extraction Indigenous Afro descendant and other organized groups resisted the expansion of extractive industries into their territories because they threatened their livelihoods and safety As the Citizens Revolution and other Pink Tide governments struggled to finance budgets and maintain power they watered down subnational forms of self government slowed down land redistribution weakened the politicized cultural identities that gave strength to social movements and reversed other fundamental gains of the multicultural era
