Reading Program [textbook], 1983 Passage through Hell David L. Pike, 2018-09-05 Taking the culturally resonant motif of the descent to the underworld as his guiding thread David L Pike traces the interplay between myth and history in medieval and modernist literature Passage through Hell suggests new approaches to the practice of comparative literature and a possible escape from the current morass of competing critical schools and ideologies Pike's readings of Louis Ferdinand Celine and Walter Benjamin reveal the tensions at work in the modern appropriation of structures derived from ancient and medieval descents His book shows how these structures were redefined in modernism and persist in contemporary critical practice In order to recover the historical corpus of modernism he asserts it is necessary to acknowledge the attraction that medieval forms and motifs held for modernist literature and theory By pairing the writings of the postwar German dramatist and novelist Peter Weiss with Dante's Commedia and Christine de Pizan with Virginia Woolf Pike argues for a new level of complexity in the relation between medieval and modern poetics Pike's supple and persuasive reading of the Commedia resituates that text within the contradictions of medieval tradition. He contends that the Dantean allegory of conversion altered to suit the exigencies of modernism maintains its hold over current literature and theory. The postwar writers Pike treats Weiss, Seamus Heaney and Derek Walcott exemplify alternate strategies for negotiating the legacy of modernism. The passage through hell emerges as a way of disentangling images of the past from their interpretation in the present.

To Play the Game John Guiver, 13th October 1972. A Uruguayan Air Force plane commissioned for a civilian flight crashes in the Andes. Among the forty passengers are a first division rugby team accompanied by family and friends. Hindered by treacherous conditions the search and rescue efforts cannot locate the wreckage and are abandoned after eight days. Ten weeks later two unkempt boys are spotted by a muleteer high in the Chilean foothills. One throws a note to him across a mountain torrent: I come from a plane that fell in the mountains. In the plane there are still fourteen injured people. Drawing on extensive original research the author sheds new light on this extraordinary story from a perspective of fifty years expanding on events before, during and after the ordeal. His retelling is enriched by the accounts of those who didn't return from the mountain related through the eyes of their families bringing much needed balance to a story which has largely focused on the survivors. John Guiver's comprehensive account which includes an in depth look at the world from which the passengers came and an analysis of the possible causes of the accident is a fundamental contribution to the history of this famous event.

The Beginning Reading Instruction Study Marcy Stein, 1993. Calling attention to the continuum of approaches reflected in beginning reading programs this report presents content and cost analyses for over 50 beginning reading programs. The first of the report's five chapters is an introduction. The second chapter begins with a brief description of the major issues in the area of beginning reading and concludes with a summary of important research based recommendations for instruction. The third chapter outlines the evaluation criteria for a content analysis of the programs and provides operational definitions of evaluation criteria. The chapter concludes with an analysis of the extent to which over 50 instructional programs and approaches reflect research in beginning reading. The fourth chapter presents a cost analysis of each program evaluated and a description of how the cost analysis was determined. The final chapter contains some conclusions and cautions about selecting and designing effective reading instructional programs RS
