Barr, 2019-08-20 Challenging students to think critically about the complex web of social forces that leads to health disparities in the United States The health care system in the United States has been called the best in the world Yet wide disparities persist between social groups and many Americans suffer from poorer health than people in other developed countries In this revised edition of Health Disparities in the United States Donald A Barr provides extensive new data about the ways low socioeconomic status race and ethnicity interact to create and perpetuate these health disparities Examining the significance of this gulf for the medical community and society at large Barr offers potential policy and physician based solutions for reducing health inequity in the long term This thoroughly updated edition focuses on a new challenge the United States last experienced more than half a century ago successive years of declining life expectancy Barr addresses the causes of this decline including what are commonly referred to as deaths of despair from opiate overdose or suicide Exploring the growing role geography plays in health disparities Barr asks why people living in rural areas suffer the greatest increases in these deaths He also analyzes recent changes under the Affordable Care Act and considers the literature on how race and ethnicity affect the way health care providers evaluate and treat patients As both a physician and a sociologist Barr is uniquely positioned to offer rigorous medical explanations alongside sociological analysis An essential text for courses in public health health policy and sociology this compelling book is a vital teaching tool and a comprehensive reference for social science and medical professionals

Improving Racial and Ethnic Data on Health
National Research Council, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Committee on National Statistics, Panel on DHHS Collection of Race and Ethnicity Data, 2003-10-15 The panel convened the Workshop on Improving Racial and Ethnic Data in Health to review information about current private sector and state data collection practices in light of existing federal state and local regulations laws and requirements The workshop presentations featured the perspectives of data users health care providers insurance plan representatives state and local public health officials and regulatory officials Participants assessed policies practices barriers and opportunities for collecting racial and ethnic data in their settings and explored ways that private and state systems can be improved to address data needs In preparation for the workshop the panel commissioned four background papers to fill gaps in knowledge of private sector and state government policies and practices and to address the importance of racial and ethnic data collection The panel is also examining the role of socioeconomic status regarding health and health care disparities However the workshop intended to focus only on racial and ethnic data collection The panel's final report will contain a full consideration of the collection of racial ethnic and socioeconomic status data

Ethnic Factors in Health and Disease J. K. Cruickshank, D. G. Beevers, 2013-10-22 Ethnic Factors in Health and Disease discusses ethnicity from a medical perspective The book is comprised of 35 chapters that are grouped into four sections The text first covers the background issues concerning the relationship between ethnicity and health The next part deals with topics related to epidemiology such as the health of migrants and interethnic comparison of cardiovascular disease Next the book tackles the sociology of health this part covers occupational status housing and racism

The last part discusses the specific medical aspects including pregnancy viral infections and cardiovascular disease. The book will be of great use to medical researchers and practitioners. Professionals dealing with ethnicity such as sociologists, anthropologists, and psychologists will also benefit from this book.

Understanding Racial and Ethnic Differences in Health in Late Life National Research Council, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Committee on Population, Panel on Race, Ethnicity, and Health in Later Life, 2004-10-08. As the population of older Americans grows, it is becoming more racially and ethnically diverse. Differences in health by racial and ethnic status could be increasingly consequential for health policy and programs. Such differences are not simply a matter of education or ability to pay for health care. For instance, Asian Americans and Hispanics appear to be in better health on a number of indicators than White Americans despite, on average, lower socioeconomic status. The reasons are complex, including possible roles for such factors as selective migration, risk behaviors, exposure to various stressors, patient attitudes, and geographic variation in health care. This volume, produced by a multidisciplinary panel, considers such possible explanations for racial and ethnic health differentials within an integrated framework. It provides a concise summary of available research and lays out a research agenda to address the many uncertainties in current knowledge. It recommends, for instance, looking at health differentials across the life course and deciphering the links between factors presumably producing differentials and biopsychosocial mechanisms that lead to impaired health.

Ethnicity, Health and Health Care Waqar Ahmad, Hannah Bradby, 2009-02-23. This volume considers the implications of national and international social, political, and economic realities for health and health care provision to minority ethnic groups. Addresses continuity and change in debates on ethnicity, health, and health care. Considers the implications of national and international social, political, and economic realities for health and health care provision to minority ethnic groups. Represents the experiences of settled and new minority ethnic groups, refugees, and asylum seekers across the world. Includes international comparisons between Caribbean migrants to the US and UK, the provision of interpreters in general practice, and the variations in uptake of disability living allowance across ethnic groups.

Race, Ethnicity, and Language Data Institute of Medicine, Board on Health Care Services, Subcommittee on Standardized Collection of Race/Ethnicity Data for Healthcare Quality Improvement, 2009-12-30. The goal of eliminating disparities in health care in the United States remains elusive. Even as quality improves on specific measures, disparities often persist. Addressing these disparities must begin with the fundamental step of bringing the nature of the disparities and the groups at risk for those disparities to light by collecting health care quality information stratified by race, ethnicity, and language data. Then attention can be focused on where interventions might be best applied and on planning and evaluating those efforts to inform the development of policy and the application of resources. A lack of standardization of categories for race, ethnicity, and language data has been suggested as one obstacle to achieving more widespread collection and utilization of these data. Race, Ethnicity, and Language Data identifies current models for collecting and coding race, ethnicity, and language data.

reviews challenges involved in obtaining these data and makes recommendations for a nationally standardized approach for use in health care quality improvement Impact of Demographics on Health and Healthcare Jennie Jacobs

Kronenfeld,2010-09-30 Focuses on differences in health and health care as linked to important social factors This title includes six articles looking at racial disparities on a variety of topics such as knowledge of hepatitis C Virus health services received and patients experiences in seeking health care use of CAM services and more Framing the Dialogue on Race and Ethnicity to Advance Health Equity National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine,Health and Medicine Division,Board on Population Health and Public Health Practice,Roundtable on Population Health Improvement,2016-10-10

In February 2016 the National Academies of Sciences Engineering and Medicine held a workshop in which speakers shared strategies for individuals organizations and communities to advance racial and health equity Participants discussed increasing awareness about the role of historical contexts and dominant narratives in interpreting data and information about different racial and ethnic groups framing messages for different social and political outcomes and readying people to institutionalize practices policies and partnerships that advance racial and health equity This publication serves as a factual summary of the presentations and discussions from the workshop Inequalities in Health Care for Migrants and Ethnic Minorities David Ingleby,2012 Vol 1 examines how much is known about migrant and ethnic minority health and where the barriers to scientific progress lie Vol 2 is concerned with the changes that are needed to improve the matching of health services to the needs of these groups Unequal Treatment Institute of Medicine,Board on Health Sciences

Policy,Committee on Understanding and Eliminating Racial and Ethnic Disparities in Health Care,2009-02-06 Racial and ethnic disparities in health care are known to reflect access to care and other issues that arise from differing socioeconomic conditions There is however increasing evidence that even after such differences are accounted for race and ethnicity remain significant predictors of the quality of health care received In Unequal Treatment a panel of experts documents this evidence and explores how persons of color experience the health care environment The book examines how disparities in treatment may arise in health care systems and looks at aspects of the clinical encounter that may contribute to such disparities Patients and providers attitudes expectations and behavior are analyzed How to intervene Unequal Treatment offers recommendations for improvements in medical care financing allocation of care availability of language translation community based care and other arenas The committee highlights the potential of cross cultural education to improve provider patient communication and offers a detailed look at how to integrate cross cultural learning within the health professions The book concludes with recommendations for data collection and research initiatives Unequal Treatment will be vitally important to health care policymakers administrators providers educators and students as well as advocates for people of color Mental Health ,2001 Health, Ethnicity, and Well-Being Penelope J. Kinsey, PhD (Editor) and D,2013 This book speaks to those who influence the delivery of health care services to African Americans especially policy makers politicians and health care providers whose attitudes and beliefs affect the extent to which provided services are effective reliable humane and compassionate In addition the purpose is to be of use to a full range of professionals who provide education health care and social services for African Americans irrespective of the program the service or the professional discipline the goal is to facilitate cultural competence in health care delivery

Critical Perspectives on Racial and Ethnic Differences in Health in Late Life National Research Council, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Committee on Population, Panel on Race, Ethnicity, and Health in Later Life, 2004-10-16 In their later years Americans of different racial and ethnic backgrounds are not in equally good or equally poor health There is wide variation but on average older Whites are healthier than older Blacks and tend to outlive them But Whites tend to be in poorer health than Hispanics and Asian Americans This volume documents the differentials and considers possible explanations Selection processes play a role selective migration for instance or selective survival to advanced ages Health differentials originate early in life possibly even before birth and are affected by events and experiences throughout the life course Differences in socioeconomic status risk behavior social relations and health care all play a role Separate chapters consider the contribution of such factors and the biopsychosocial mechanisms that link them to health This volume provides the empirical evidence for the research agenda provided in the separate report of the Panel on Race Ethnicity and Health in Later Life

Unequal Treatment Institute of Medicine, Board on Health Sciences Policy, Committee on Understanding and Eliminating Racial and Ethnic Disparities in Health Care, 2009-02-06 Racial and ethnic disparities in health care are known to reflect access to care and other issues that arise from differing socioeconomic conditions There is however increasing evidence that even after such differences are accounted for race and ethnicity remain significant predictors of the quality of health care received In Unequal Treatment a panel of experts documents this evidence and explores how persons of color experience the health care environment The book examines how disparities in treatment may arise in health care systems and looks at aspects of the clinical encounter that may contribute to such disparities Patients and providers attitudes expectations and behavior are analyzed How to intervene Unequal Treatment offers recommendations for improvements in medical care financing allocation of care availability of language translation community based care and other arenas The committee highlights the potential of cross cultural education to improve provider patient communication and offers a detailed look at how to integrate cross cultural learning within the health professions The book concludes with recommendations for data collection and research initiatives Unequal Treatment will be vitally important to health care policymakers administrators providers educators and students as well as advocates for people of color

Eliminating Health Disparities National Research Council, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Committee on National Statistics, Panel on DHHS Collection of Race and Ethnicity Data, 2004-08-09 Disparities in health and health care across racial ethnic and socioeconomic backgrounds in the United States are well documented The reasons for these disparities are however not well understood Current data available on race ethnicity SEP and accumulation and language use are severely limited The report examines data collection and reporting systems relating to the collection of data on race ethnicity and socioeconomic position and offers recommendations

Health and Ethnicity Helen Macbeth,Prakash Shetty,2000-11-23 It is becoming increasingly apparent that certain diseases occur at higher frequencies in different ethnic groups e g Afro Carribeans and sickle cell anaemia The causes for such differences are only just being investigated and the factors involved are clearly both genetic and non genetic The biological complexity lies in the interaction of genetic variation and lifestyle differences Cultural differences range from diet to traditional remedies from religious beliefs to marriage patterns and much more This multidisciplinary volume discusses these factors with contributions from geneticists medics anthropologists epidemiologists and social scientists Anyone considering variation in health experience due to ethnic factors would be enriched by reading the different perspectives presented in this volume

Migration, Ethnicity, Race, and Health in Multicultural Societies Raj S.
