General Lewis Walt:

Operational Art in Vietnam, 1965-1967 Major Jeremy G. Swenddal, 2015-11-06 This study investigates the significant effect of mobility counter mobility survivability and topographic engineering on the American Civil War Campaign of Chancellorsville. The operations occurred near Fredericksburg Virginia in April and May of 1863. In the battle the Confederate Army of Northern Virginia decisively defeated the Union Army of the Potomac. Engineer related considerations contributed immensely to the Confederate victory. Engineer battlefield functions influenced the operations of both armies. The Union Engineer Brigade constructed numerous pontoon bridges to overcome the river obstacles prior to and following the battle. This capability allowed the Union Army to initially surprise and envelop the Confederate Army. The natural obstacles of the rivers and forests and manmade obstacles of abatis hindered maneuver. Survivability was a significant factor during the fighting. At Chancellorsville the Confederates used entrenchments for the first time in open operations. This strengthened their economy of force in front of the Union Army and gave Stonewall Jackson mass during his successful enveloping attack. Finally topographic engineering was important through map production and reconnaissance by engineers. This study concludes that the Confederate Army integrated the engineer battlefield functions more effectively than the Union Army. In part this explains the decisive Confederate victory.

Mastering the Art of Command Trent Hone, 2022-09-15 Honorable Mention for the John Lyman Book Award in the category of U S Naval History. Mastering the Art of Command is a detailed examination of Admiral Chester W. Nimitz's leadership during World War II. It describes how he used his talents to guide the Pacific Fleet following the attacks on Pearl Harbor, win crucial victories against the forces of Imperial Japan, and then seize the initiative in the Pacific. Once Nimitz's forces held the initiative, they maintained it through an offensive campaign of unparalleled speed that overcame Japanese defenses and created the conditions for victory. As a command and operational history, Mastering the Art of Command explores how Nimitz used his leadership skills, command talents, and strategic acumen to achieve these decisive results. Hone recounts how Nimitz, as both Commander in Chief of the Pacific Fleet CINCPAC and Commander in Chief of the Pacific Ocean Areas CINCPAC, revised and adapted his organizational structure to capitalize on lessons and newly emerging information. Hone argues that Nimitz, because he served simultaneously as CINCPAC and CINCPAC, was able to couple tactical successes to strategic outcomes and more effectively plan and execute operations that brought victory at Midway, Guadalcanal, the Marshall Islands, the Philippines, Iwo Jima, and Okinawa. As a study of leadership, Mastering the Art of Command uses modern management theories and builds upon the approach in his award-winning Learning War. Trent Hone explores the challenge of leadership in complex adaptive systems through Nimitz's behavior and causes us to reassess the inevitability of Allied victory and the reasons for its ultimate accomplishment. A new narrative history of the Pacific war, this book demonstrates effective patterns for complexity informed leadership by highlighting how Nimitz maintained coherence within his organization, established the conditions for his subordinates to succeed, and fostered collaborative sensemaking to identify and pursue options more rapidly. Nimitz's strategic artistry is a pattern worthy of study and emulation for today's
