Environments Stella Vosniadou, Erik De Corte, Robert Glaser, Heinz Mandl, 2012-10-12 In recent years the use of technology for the purposes of improving and enriching traditional instructional practices has received a great deal of attention. However, few works have explicitly examined cognitive psychological and educational principles on which technology supported learning environments are based. This volume attempts to cover the need for a thorough theoretical analysis and discussion of the principles of system design that underlie the construction of technology enhanced learning environments. It presents examples of technology supported learning environments that cover a broad range of content domains from the physical sciences and mathematics to the teaching of language and literacy. The emphasis in this book is not on the design of educational software but on the design of learning environments. A great deal of research on learning and instruction has recently moved out of the laboratory into the design of applications in instructional settings. By designing technology supported learning environments, instructional scientists attempt to better understand the theories and principles that are explicit in their theories of learning. The contributors to this volume examine how factors such as social interaction, the creation of meaningful activities, the use of multiple perspectives, and the construction of concrete representations influence the acquisition of new information and transfer. Activity Theory, Authentic Learning and Emerging Technologies Vivienne Bozalek, Dick Ng'ambi, Denise Wood, Jan Herrington, Joanne Hardman, Alan Amory, 2014-09-15 Although emerging technologies are becoming popularised for teaching learning and research, the relationship between their use and transformative effects on higher education remain largely unexplored. This edited collection seeks to fill this gap by providing a nuanced view, locating higher education pedagogical practices at an intersection of emerging technologies, authentic learning and activity systems. Providing numerous case studies as examples, the book draws from a wide range of contexts to illustrate how such a convergence has the potential to track transformative teaching and learning practices in the higher education sector. Chapters provide the reader with a variety of transformative higher education pedagogical practices in southern contexts, theorised within the framework of Cultural Historical Activity Theory (CHAT) and tool mediation, while using authentic learning as a pedagogical model upon which this theoretical framework is based. The topics covered in the book have global relevance, with research paying particular attention to South Africa, Australia and New Zealand, where the authors are based. The book will be of interest to educators, researchers and practitioners in higher education as well as those interested in emerging technologies in education more generally. Essentials of Chemical Education Hans-Dieter Barke, Günther Harsch, Siegbert Schmid, 2011-10-28 For everybody teaching chemistry or becoming a chemistry teacher, the authors provide a practice oriented overview with numerous examples from current chemical education, including experiments, models and exercises, as well as relevant results from research on learning and teaching. With their proven concept, the authors cover classical topics of chemical education as well as modern topics such as every day life chemistry, student's misconceptions, the use of media or the challenges of motivation.
